Dysart sets '85 budget, schools take tax bite

Property owners in Dysart et al's nine townships will see their taxes rise by a little more than 11 percent this year in the wake of a substantial jump in the education levy to the municipality.

At a meeting Monday, council adopted a 1985 budget of $2,482,902, which will require tax increase of only 2.3 percent. But the education levy, which accounts for about two thirds of a property owner's total tax bill, is up 18.22 percent in Dysart, for an overall tax increase of 11.18 percent.

The increase means that a home or cottage owner who paid $250 in municipal, county and education taxes last year will have to contribute $280 this year.

Reeve Murray Fearrey said council took a hard line in setting this year's budget. Expenditures in almost every category reflect last year's spending, or have been increased only marginally.

Revenues are expected to benefit from an increase in overall assessment within the municipality, as well as from higher grants in lieu of taxation from Bell Canada, which has upgraded local service.

Revenues from late tax penalties and interest are expected to decrease somewhat this year because of the improved economy.

Municipal revenues will include a $71,750 grant under the Ontario Neighbourhood Improvement Program, but this will be matched by an equivalent amount from the local coffers to complete paving from the Highland Street intersection to the Drag River bridge and a new sidewalk on Riverside Drive. Dysart's share of the proposed work will be financed with money generated by sales of surplus municipal land.

Actual spending down

On the expenditure side of the budget, council's anticipated spending of $2.48 million is down slightly from 1984 actual spending of $2.51 million.

In the environmental category, expenditures are expected to decrease by about $10,000 from 1984 levels, since last year's figures included the costs of acquiring two new dump sites.

Health spending also is down from 1984, when $23,000 was earmarked for equipping a new rescue vehicle obtained with federal assistance.

Spending for social and family services remains substantially unchanged from 1984 levels in the new budget.

In the recreation category, some reductions have been made possible by provincial and federal student employment programs. These have saved wage costs for the tourist information booth and the upkeep of Head Lake Park.

Council's support for the museum in Glebe Park is up significantly this year, to $50,000 from $39,000 spent last year. Some of the money is earmarked for refurbishing a pioneer cabin and barn moved to the site recently.

Assistance to the Guild of Fine Arts also is up significantly this year, to $12,000 compared with a grant of $7000 last year. Council increased its provision for other grants from $2,800 last year to $5000 in 1985.

In the general government category council has held the line, with no increases planned in council remuneration and only modest increases in office staff salaries.

Spending under protection to persons and property is expected to

Overall tax hike to be 11.18 percent

The municipal portion of transportation spending is down slightly this year, but actual expenditures will reflect Ontario Neighbourhood Improvement Program work and a grant from the province for stabilization of the embankment along the Highway 121 connecting link at the west end of the village.

be down this year from 1984, when new parking meter mechanisms were purchased and installed.

Reeve Murray Fearrey said council could have increased the budget in a number of categories but opted to keep spending down as a means of cushioning the impact of higher education levies.

Rural roads need quick fix

Part of 1984 surplus earmarked for remedial action

Following an emotional and sometimes heated debate, Anson, Hindon and Minden council agreed last Thursday to direct part of a $100,000 1984 surplus to road improvement projects.

The resolution adopted by council states that "a minimum of $30,000" be added to the 1985 road budget to begin "a program of repairs to those rural roads with the greatest need."

The money will be held in a reserve for working funds until the road committee decides where it is to be spent.

Councillor Gary Kenney brought the issue to the table and argued forcefully in favour of using a portion of the budget surplus for road repairs.

Kenney said a recent report completed for the municipality by an engineer showed that rural roads "are in a desperate situation", and as much as $6 million would be needed to bring them up to standard. On some roads, "it's a struggle to get home," Kenney said.

In pressing to have some of the budget surplus used for roads, Kenney said they must have a higher priority than a proposed wildlife park which is under consideration. While $30,000 is a small amount when compared with the $6 million needed to upgrade every road in the municipality, a small amount of work can "make a big difference" on a deficient road, Kenney said, adding that council "has an obligation" to direct funds to areas where there is greatest need.

Acting reeve Ed Pergolas argued for caution, saying "I have no intention of entertaining...anything that is not in the roads needs study". He noted that as yet council has not met to examine the priorities spelled out in the study, undertaken last year.

Pergolas said he would not be willing to let money be taken out of the reserve fund until it is required.

"Until you have a proper roads needs study meeting, you're just talking off the top of your head," Pergolas told Kenney. "I don't want to withdraw any funds until

An Anglican minister who once served at St. George's Church in Haliburton was murdered in the study of his Maple Ridge, British Columbia church on April 23.

Rev. John Taylor, formerly of RR2 Markham, was shot while working at his desk near the church's sanctuary. Motive for the killing remains unclear.

Police initially thought Taylor had been the victim of an armed robbery, but it was later reported that he had gone to the church to keep a counselling appointment, and the shooting was thought to be related.

According to a story in the Whitby Star, Stouffville Tribune, Taylor's wife Betty discovered he had been shot after she went to the church to find out why he had not come home for lunch.

OPP pipe band plays for students

By HAMISH GORDON

The Ontario Provincial Police Pipe and Drum Marching Band came to Haliburton for their first spectacular performance of medleys, waltzes and melancholy marches here on Tuesday.

More than 300 J. Douglas Hodgson and Archie Stouffer elementary school children were on hand to watch the show, which took place on the playing fields of the Haliburton school.

The 17 piece Scottish pipe and drums marching band entertained the children and teachers for an hour on Tuesday morning and then chatted and showed off their bag pipes and drums to fascinated children.

The pipers and drummers from OPP detachments as far away as Barrie, Bracebridge and Orillia are regular members of the force who investigate traffic accidents and break and enter cases, among other duties, drum major John Bean told the children.

The pipe and drum band's repertoire included Murdoch's Wedding, Scotland the Brave, Cockney Jocks, and Bonnie Lass during the first part of their performance.

They came back for a marching display with Killworth Hills, then a slow march of the Willow Tree and finished the march with Jenny's Bawbee.

The band then formed a circle and filled the highlands with Amazing Grace which silenced the restless youth as the sweet strains swept over them.

The band then broke into their own rendition of a three minute drum salute which was very popular with rock fans. The pipers finished their repertoire with Lockanside as they marched off the field.

Hundreds of children then mobbed the kilted pipers who enjoyed the adulation and gave little lectures about their pipes and drums.

Thefts

A snow vehicle described as a 1982 Yamaha which was left by the owners on the Black Lake Road at the end of March was stolen. Constable MacMartin is investigating.

Constable Jarvis responded to a reported break in at a cottage on Salerno Lake to find a quantity of liquor and a large amount of foodstuff had been stolen. There was also extensive damage done to the cottage. Constable Clendenning also investigated a cottage break in on Salerno Lake in which a stereo system, a Homelite chainsaw and several other items are reported missing. Anyone with information on these items is encouraged to phone the nearest OPP detachment.

Constable Clendenning attended a cottage on Drag Lake to find a Mercury outboard motor had been stolen sometime in the past six weeks.

works by local students are hung at the Gallery as a means of recognizing the talents of young artists in the community.

The Township solicitor was authorized to proceed with the necessary legal arrangements to have the Little Silver Lake Road transferred from Gordon Riehl's name to the Township's. A deposit was received from Silver Lake Cottagers Association to cover the cost and any excess money will be refunded.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Weitzel attended the meeting to discuss council's views on cottage conversion to permanent occupancy.

Brian Goodreid, County Planner attended the meeting to talk about the Conversion Policy and to present some ideas as how to deal with it. In addition the Terms of Reference pertaining to amendments to the Official Plan for the Townships were discussed.

Minden accepts tenders

A special meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden council was held May 2 and the following matters were considered:

Joe Cannon of Viceroy Homes was present to request council's approval of the installation of a new building on land at the Red and White plaza on Hwy. 35. A temporary building permit was issued to Cannon to erect a building on Part of Lot 4, Concession A, in the Township of Minden, for use as a display home and sales office, subject to MTC approval, for a period of three years. The permit will be issued subsequent to the removal of the existing building.

The following tenders were submitted for a structural evaluation of the Minden arena and Minden Curling Club, as required by the Ontario Ministry of Labour: Robert G. McEwen and Associates Ltd. - $680; The Greer Galloway Group - $940; Totten Sims Hubicki Associates - $1,550. The tender submitted by the firm Robert G. McEwen and Associates Ltd. for completing a structural evaluation of the Minden arena and the Minden Curling Club buildings, in the amount of $680, was accepted.

The following tenders were submitted for a street light study for three areas within the village of Minden: Totten Sims Hubicki Associates - $4,500; Wm. J. The tender submitted by Totten Sims Hubicki Associates for the completion of a street light study of the main street commercial and business area of Minden, in the amount of $4,500, was accepted pursuant to the recommendations of the B.I.A.

A discussion was held concerning the establishment of a firm sale price for part of Lot 3, Concession A, Township of Anson. A final decision will be made by council in the near future.

At a meeting last Thursday, Anson, Hindon and Minden council considered the following matters:

A motion was introduced stating that council believes the Rural and Native Housing Program can be of benefit to this municipality and with regard for future implementation will form a committee comprised of members of council and representative ratepayers charged with a responsibility to:

- meet with RNHP representatives to assess current potential within the townships for the program.
- assess the benefits of new housing vs renovation options within the program.
- familiarize themselves with specific details of the application formulae.
- comment on improvements that may be made in the way of information released to the public.

Minden drops idea of meeting CMHC

Anson, Hindon and Minden council passed an "emasculated" version of a resolution on the Rural and Native Housing program last Thursday saying only that council believes "it can be of benefit to the municipality with regard to future implementation."

The amendment to a resolution proposed by councillor Gary Kenney dropped clauses that called for a citizens committee to meet with program officials.

Kenney's resolution called for the establishment of a committee of councillors and ratepayers who would "assess current potential within the townships for the program; assess the benefits of new housing versus renovation options, familiarize themselves with specific details of the applications formulae, comment on improvements that may be made in the way of information released to the public; and report to council prior to implementation of the program".

over the Rural and Native Housing Program, "in the normal fashion", acting as the public's representatives in talks with the provincial officials.

Councillor Dave Stevens proposed the amendment which dropped Kenney's idea for a committee and said only that the municipality believes the program can be of benefit in the future.

Kenney said the amended motion was meaningless. He argued that the committee would enable council to get more information with which it could ensure that the program has maximum impact in the municipality.

"If you're going to follow this procedure you're not going to get any allocation," Pergolas replied. It will go to communities where there is "no red tape," he said.

But Kenney insisted that the committee would be a valuable tool to open up communication with provincial officials and air different

Work has begun on a new shopping facility for Haliburton. Owner Mike Easton says it will house three retail shops, with the possibility of a second storey expansion in the future. The project is expected to be completed by July 1.

New stores to be ready by July 1st

The second new retail development on Haliburton's main street in as many months is expected to be open by the end of June, according to owner Mike Easton.

Construction began last week on a single story, 4,600 square foot building on property between Cordell Interiors and the former Bell Canada facility on the south side of Highland Street. A house that formerly stood on the property was moved to Harmony Road earlier this year to pave the way for the new development.

Initial plans call for the building to provide three retail store spaces, each with individual access from main street. However the building's design will allow a second storey to be added later, Easton said.

Greg Brown Construction has received the contract to erect the building.

Hydro management copes with load

While the picket line at Ontario Hydro's district office in Minden has been quiet during the nine day old strike, management workers have been busy trying to keep pace with the extra work load.

Cottagers coming up to Haliburton County for the Victoria Day weekend for the first time this year shouldn't be surprised if they have no power yet.

Ontario Hydro's public relations officer, Peter Webster said that because of the strike "reconnection of power supplies will be somewhat slower this year."

"We would ask that customers report any problems by phone and exercise patience," he added.

The 23 office and trade workers not involved in the strike of local CUPE 1000 workers, have been handling routine and emergency calls from Norland to the Huntsville area.

The eight management (trade) workers have had to repair lines brought down by trees, broken poles and power interruption caused by squirrels, area manager Cal Wilson said.

"We've been working late into the night and over the weekend," trying to keep pace with the daily problems of maintaining the local power network, he said.

Wilson said he doesn't expect any trouble on the picket line at Minden like there has been at the Pickering nuclear plant near Toronto.

'Red tape' seen as a hindrance

Acting reeve Ed Pergolas opposed the resolution in its original form, saying he did not think it was a good idea to form a committee. "I don't want to see it bogged down in red tape," he said. "I certainly wouldn't want to serve on that committee."

Pergolas said provincial housing authorities "have their guidelines and that's it. You either follow the guidelines or you don't qualify."

Councillor Pat Burk said she felt the resolution was aimed at "a communications exercise". "I think it needs to be discussed," she said, so that ratepayers can find out "just what the thing involves."

But Pergolas insisted that council should deal with the controversy viewpoints on how the program can be implemented "without the kind of confrontation" that occurred in the past.

Pergolas sought an end to the impasse by calling for a vote on the amended resolution.

Kenney said his proposal had been emasculated. "You might as well put another motion on the table that there are 24 hours in a day," he said.

"It's better than nothing," councillor Pat Burk said.

"No, it's exactly nothing," Kenney replied.

When the amended resolution was put to a vote, Stevens and Burk supported it, ensuring that it was passed.

CMHC reject Legion housing

Haliburton's Legion has had its bid for a senior citizens housing project turned down. In a letter to the local steering committee, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation said the local Legion's proposal for funding under the Social Housing Program would not be granted in 1985.

Branch 129's proposal was one of 17 received by the Oshawa branch of CMHC this year. In all, sponsoring groups asked for 1088 units, while the total allocation for 1985 is only 223 units.

The local Legion hoped to sponsor construction of a multi unit apartment complex on land acquired last year fronting on Park Street behind the Rotary Beach tennis courts.

CMHC's Oshawa branch said priority for 1985 would be given to family housing, with 223 units allocated to an area stretching from Lake Ontario to Huntsville and from Peterborough to Collingwood.

Members of the steering committee said they were disappointed with the CMHC decision, but will not abandon the project. At a meeting last week, the committee decided to pursue other funding routes. Further meetings will be sought with government officials, and the possibility of private sector funding also will be investigated.

The committee notes that since Haliburton County has the highest percentage of senior citizens of any area in Ontario, there is a "desperate need" for more apartment accommodation.

People who submitted their names to the steering committee for possible accommodation will be notified when there is more definite information regarding construction of the proposed complex, the steering committee said in a release.

"We will continue to explore all possible sources of assistance with the ultimate goal of a new senior citizens apartment building for Haliburton in the very near future," the committee said.

Ideas for LEAD funds sought

By HAMISH GORDON

Planning Co-ordinator, Andy Campbell is still waiting for ideas and proposals on paper for the use of Local Employment Assistance Development (LEAD) funds being offered by the federal government.

Campbell said ideas from individuals and associations are needed on paper before he can call an executive meeting sometime next week.

"I am anticipating development ideas leaning toward the infrastructure models," Campbell said. But he would not hint at what some of the tentative proposals have been for LEAD's first executive meeting.

Federal funding will be slotted for three possible employment and economic development projects in Haliburton County if individuals, business or associations can come up with the ideas. Campbell said $350,000 could be spent in each of two years on an infrastructure project in a specific location anywhere in the county.

The second option offered by the federal government would provide up to $1.5 million over a five year period to a LEAD corporation which would lend it to qualifying businesses in need of funds. Maximum amount of the loans would be $25,000, and competitive interest rates would be charged. The corporation could also take an equity position in a business.

An enterprise project involving the creation and running of a business operated by a community development association in conjunction with the LEAD board of directors would qualify for up to $350,000 a year for five years.

But Campbell doesn't expect any proposals for the enterprise project. The costs involved in market research and feasibility studies that would justify federal funding is too high at such short notice, he indicated. However the LEAD cor-

Work 'absolutely necessary'

you know it's absolutely necessary."

"My point is that it's absolutely necessary right now," Kenney countered. He said the proposed $30,000 expenditure from the surplus should be "applied to new measures in excess of normal maintenance," and that planning on how to spend it should begin right away.

However Pergolas continued to contend that the surplus should not be touched until the half million dollars already allocated for road work has been spent. "I'm saying that until we need the $30,000, we guard it," Pergolas argued.

Councillor Pat Burk agreed with the acting reeve's point, but said the roads committee should sit down and study the roads needs report, decide what work has highest priority, "and get at it."

Kenney's insistence that immediate action should be taken to repair some roads was supported by ratepayer Bill Simmerson, who said "we don't need a study, we need action."

Simmerson, a resident of Brady Lake, claimed the municipal grader only went along the road twice a year. He said "an invisible barrier" at the top of the Bobcaygeon Road prevents the grader from crossing Highway 118 to reach the Brady Lake Road, which he described as "a cow path".

Kenney responded that the municipality now has a grader policy, and most roads will be done as often as once a week.

"We know the problems. We're trying to alleviate them," Pergolas told Simmerson.

Simmerson said he was not merely "fighting for Brady Lake. I'm fighting for everyone."

After close to half an hour of discussion, council agreed to earmark $30,000 of the surplus for remedial work in excess of the 1985 road budget allocation, and to establish priorities for spending it.

Crisis

It will come as no surprise to many residents of Anson, Hindon and Minden that the municipality's rural roads are not in good condition. Anyone who has braved the wilds of Blairhampton, for example, can tell nightmarish tales of blind corners, yawning potholes and bone jarring washboard. What is surprising, however, is the scope of the problem and the massive cost of remedial action.

At a meeting last Thursday it was revealed that a municipal roads needs study undertaken last year has found deficiencies that would cost a staggering $6 million to repair. That figure is perhaps inflated in that it represents the cost of bringing roads up to an ideal standard, but even if they could be cut in half, the numbers would still be awesome. Set against them councillor Gary Kenney's request that $30,000 of a $100,000 1984 operating surplus be earmarked for roads seems a minor one indeed. Acting reeve Ed Pergolas said the roads could soak up so small a sum "like a sponge" with very little effect. Kenney argued, on the other hand, that a little would go a long way if it improved drainage or otherwise made even a few miles of rural road more passable.

For council, the dilemma is not really whether $30,000 of last year's surplus should be used for additional road repairs, but how to find long term solutions to a very serious problem. As a resident of Brady Lake who was present at last Thursday's meeting pointed out, roads are almost the only municipal service provided for seasonal residents. If taxes keep going up and roads keep getting worse, can a cottager council or a tax revolt be far behind?

Is the situation in Anson, Hindon and Minden a legacy of poor management by councils or a consequence of falling grant support from the provincial government? If the latter, then why is the crisis with rural roads apparently less acute in other local municipalities?

These are tough questions, and they will no doubt be asked by voters this November when the three year term of council comes to an end.

In the meantime, council will have to reassess its priorities and ensure that its road maintenance program receives maximum support and operates as efficiently as possible. Deteriorating roads are simply too important to ignore. And at the same time, all local councils will have to ensure that their voice is heard loudly and clearly at Queen's Park. If there is money in provincial coffers to build ever bigger arteries to serve Metro Toronto, there ought to be money as well to keep rural roads from getting any worse.

Be generous

It isn't often in the course of our daily lives that we pause to consider the plight of people in less fortunate circumstances. As Canadians, we take clean water and abundant food for granted. They seem more of a right than a privilege. And yet for countless millions throughout the developing countries, water is precious and food is scarce.

Throughout this week, local citizens are being asked to open their hearts and their wallets in aid of African Relief. The project is the brainchild of a number of local people who have been moved by the plight of people in Ethiopia and Sudan, and who want to do something about it. All money raised will go to the Canadian Red Cross for relief projects.

The gesture is an extremely important one, and it deserves community support. Give what you can because the cause is good.

To The Editor:

In a letter to the editor last week, H. Michael Collins claimed that, "One of the main reasons for man's rape of the planet was the Christian-Judaic premise that God put man on the earth as a dominating force and that all other species were there for his pleasure." While many people believe that basic argument it is not a 'Christian-Judaic premise'. God did not put people on the earth to dominate, in the sense of plundering, exploiting, or 'raping' the planet as David Suzuki and Michael Collins mistakenly assert.

First, God put people on this planet to be care-takers and managers of the earth, on His behalf. This is made clear in Genesis 2:15, "The Lord God took the man and put him in the Garden of Eden TO WORK IT AND TAKE CARE OF IT." (emphasis, mine). God never intended to simply turn the planet willy-nilly over to people to do as they please. King David proclaims, "The earth is the Lord's and everything in it." (Psalm 24:1). God's intention for people is that they will respect the planet as a gift on loan, to be used but not abused.

Secondly, the other reason that God put people on the earth is clearly stated in the Presbyterian's 'Westminster Confession', "Question: What is the chief end of man? Answer: The chief end of man is to glorify God and to enjoy Him forever."

In my view, these two points more accurately reflect the 'Christian-Judaic premise' of God's reasons for peopling the earth.

The wrong riding

To The Editor:

I would think every permanent resident in Galway and Cavendish Townships would be concerned about the issue I'm going to address. Before I start I must say it is not my intention to be critical of anyone. It seems to be a situation that slowly grew upon us Peterborough city, being the capital of our county (Peterborough), seems to be the natural base for all political purposes. Now we are living in the age of change, whether these changes are for better or for worse.

A few years ago for Federal purposes, Galway and Cavendish Townships were joined with Victoria-Haliburton riding with the town of Lindsay being home base. This works very well. Everyone is happy with the arrangement - our highways lead directly to Lindsay where we can do any type of business or obtain any service we may require.

Now let's look at the other side of the coin. For Provincial purposes we are in Hastings-Peterborough riding. I understand the nomination meetings to select our candidates are held in Norwood and Madoc. Madoc is twice the distance to Lindsay with no direct highway. We do not do any business in that direction. Geographically we are separated by vast area of unsettled bush land. As we go through this period of provincial elections, I observe the disadvantages of being attached to Hastings-Peterborough rather than Victoria-Haliburton.

We are not aware of the dates of the nomination meetings, therefore, we do not have an opportunity to participate in choosing our candidates. If a survey was taken nine eligible voters out of ten questioned could not tell you the names that will appear on the ballot. I know the answer we receive - the ridings are made up by the number of voters, not by area. Our total number is so small, less than 400, I fail to think it outweighs the inconvenience it creates for our people. When the next survey is taken I am sure a closer observance would be much appreciated.

Now that I have told the story, I hope someone will pick up the torch and carry it through to a successful end.

Walking for water

To The Editor:

Recently, as I travelled throughout India for the second time, I was again moved by the incredible number of people walking. Many of those persons, especially the women, were Walking for Water. When walking, often for great distances, with pots on their heads, they were either going to or coming from big, open contaminated wells, badly polluted streams and, sometimes, pure bore wells. In a tropical country, with over 700 million people, pure water is indeed a scarce, precious commodity.

Fortunately in Haliburton County we have an abundance of clean, uncontaminated water. For most of us we simply turn the tap and expect plenty of good water to gush out. Most of the time

The Victoria Day holiday weekend will soon be with us and this will be the first time that many of our visitors and cottage owners have had the opportunity to come back to the Highlands of Haliburton since last summer. For many of you this will possibly be the first time that you have had the opportunity to read our newspaper, 'The Haliburton County Echo'. We think that it's a very good newspaper and we hope that you will agree with us after you have read it over from cover to cover. In the past few weeks many changes have been made in the layout and in the weeks to come we expect more changes to be made in an effort to present to you one of the finest small town papers in Ontario. We like to think that this particular weekend is the beginning of the summer season when everyone seems to be getting prepared for the busy season that lies ahead. It is also very gratifying for all of us to know that more people will be employed here if for only a few months.

Those of you who haven't been back to the Highlands for a long time will notice many changes in the various communities and many new businesses have opened up while others have changed hands. There is no doubt about the fact that many business people and their employees have been giving a great deal of thought as to just what lies ahead as far as business is concerned this summer. We all hope that it will be busy, as everyone here can use a few extra dollars. A great deal will depend on just what the weatherman has in store for us as the weather all seems to have a bearing on whether business is going to be good or bad. Let's all start to look on the positive side of the chart and let the sun shine in.

Work started last week on the new plaza which is being constructed on Highland Street in Haliburton between Cordell Interiors and the Bell Canada Building. We understand that the building will be completed and open for business by July 1.

Local citizens as well as visitors are getting ready this weekend for the annual Haliburton Spring Fling which will be held at Head Lake Park in Haliburton this coming Sunday, May 19. The big day which is sponsored by the Dysart Recreation and Community Centres Board and the Municipality of Dysart will feature bake sales, kids' games, family mini-triathlon, shuffleboard, tennis tournament, kids' horseshoe tournament, canoe races, volleyball, kids' novelty races, fun at CHACE Place, 19th green fun golf, music by the Legion Pipe Band and Scottish Country Dancers, kids' paddle boat races, adult horseshoe tournament, snowmobile water cross demonstration, music by Highlands Dixie Band, family picnic at the park and of course the highlight of the day will be the giant fireworks display in the evening at 9:00 p.m.

They say that life begins at 40. Well, if that's true, it's just starting for Jim Scheffee of Haliburton. A number of friends gathered at Wig-A-Mog Inn on Thursday, April 25 to help Jim celebrate the occasion with a birthday party that featured a roast beef dinner. I consider Jim to be a really good friend and I wish to join his many other friends in wishing him many more years of good health and happiness.

As you will see when you read the advertisements in this week's issue of the Echo, there will be plenty of things to do and see this holiday weekend. When we think of things to do we must keep in mind all you lovers of yard sales who will be right at home as many of these sales are scheduled for this particular time. We certainly look forward to seeing many of our old friends and let's hope that the weather will be warm and sunny so that the local people and the visitors coming into the area will enjoy the weekend to the fullest. Nice warm weather enables the cottager to get outside and do that work around the cottage that he has been putting off for the past year and has been thinking about during those long, cold winter days and nights.

We have just been informed that Curry Motors Limited of Haliburton, in co-operation with General Motors of Canada, have been successful in securing the Chevy Hot Air Balloon for this year's Haliburton Rotary summer carnival, which will be held on Wednesday, August 7. The GM balloon with the words "Way To Go Chevy!" in big letters on the side will be taking off from Head Lake Park near the Rotary Beach. The balloon will be floating along the parade route during the parade in the evening.

During the past few weeks, friends of Eric Witzke, local taxi cab operator who was seriously injured in a two car collision just recently, have been asking us about Eric's state of health. This week, thanks to a Toronto resident who took the time to phone the hospital, we have this to report. At the present time Eric is a patient at Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto. He is progressing quite well and has been moved from one intensive care unit to another. He will be starting therapy very soon and he has no problems with his sight or hearing. At the present time the hospital is not allowing visitors, just the immediate family. If you would like to send him a card the address is: Eric Witzke, Sunnybrook Hospital, 2075 Bayview Ave., Toronto, Ontario M4N 3M5. Room No. D7STCU.

Report From Parliament

by Bill Scott, M.P.

New bills address some concerns

During the first week of May, the Hon. John Crosbie, Minister of Justice, introduced several pieces of legislation in the House of Commons to address serious concerns of Canadians. The Bills involved are listed below with a brief explanation.

Bill C-47, an Act Respecting Divorce and Corollary Relief: This Act is a complete revision of the Divorce Act of 1968. It is an attempt to modernize the law pertaining to the divorce process itself by making it less adversarial while increasing chances for the reconciliation of the spouses or, where this is not possible, providing a more humane and fairer resolution of the consequences of divorce. Bill C-47 provides that marriage breakdown would be the sole basis for divorce. Marriage breakdown would be established when either of the spouses have lived separate and apart for one year or the spouse against whom divorce is sought has committed adultery or cruelty, in which case immediate divorce may be granted. It recognizes that support should promote the economic self-sufficiency of each spouse within a reasonable period of time after the divorce. It provides that any resultant economic hardship will be relieved. To take into account the best interests of children, the Act allows the courts to grant custody or access to either or both parents.

Bill C-48, an Act to provide for the release of information that may assist in locating defaulting spouses and other persons and to permit, for the enforcement of support orders and support provisions, the garnishment and attachment of certain moneys payable by Her Majesty in right of Canada: This Act provides for the release of some information and for the interception of certain federal funds to improve the enforcement of support orders, custody orders and access rights under federal and provincial law. It is written in three parts.

Part I provides for the release of information to trace missing persons where there has been a breach of family order or an information laid under sections 250.1 or 250.2 of the Criminal Code (abduction of a child contrary to a custody order or custody arrangement). Part II allows the garnishment of designated federal moneys owed a supporting spouse for payment to the dependent spouse, to enforce a spousal or child support order, or a support provision in an agreement where the agreement is enforceable by garnishment under provincial law. Part III provides that information may be released in accordance with the Act notwithstanding any other Act of Parliament. The Bill represents the Federal government's commitment to improve the enforcement of support payments and custody and access arrangements.

Bill C-49, an Act to amend the Criminal Code (Prostitution): This Bill would repeal and replace in its entirety Section 195.1 of the Criminal Code dealing with soliciting for the purpose of prostitution. It would ban soliciting for the purpose of prostitution in "public places" or any place open to public view. This includes the interior of a motor vehicle located in a public place, for example, on a city street, or a motor vehicle located in a private place open to public view, such as the driveway of a private residence. Any person who, in a public place, stops or attempts to stop any motor vehicle, who impedes either pedestrian or motor vehicle traffic, who blocks driveways or interferes with access adjacent to public areas or stops anyone for the purpose of engaging in prostitution or of obtaining the services of a prostitute may be found guilty of an offence. Thus, both the prostitute and the customer may be charged with soliciting for the purpose of street prostitution.

Grosbeaks now moving through

Naturalists

By MIKE SINGLETON

Suddenly, as the forest canopy opens, the air is punctuated by a new song - a pretty little poem, as one naturalist describes it, sung in the softest of tones, full of delicacy and charm. It emanates from mysterious, almost gawdy, travellers - shiny black-and-white above stark white below, and "bibbed" with the most vivid of reds.

Rose-breasted grosbeaks - among our most beautiful birds in both song and colour - have distinct male and female plumages. The gawdy automaton that grabs both eye and ear is the male. The female - which shares the same short and heavy seed-cracking bill - is a muted collection of olive-brown and white striping, and very quiet.

They're coming through in numbers now, on the final leg of a 5,000 km migration. For, theirs is a life cycle filled with mystery, romance and distant lands. They have spent the winter - from late October through mid-March wintering in Central America. From Guatemala to Panama, they dotted the mighty jungles and highlands, somehow surviving the ravages of war and capture, awaiting spring's cue. Over the next two to three weeks, they'll spread out to dot the deciduous and mixed forests of southern and central Ontario.

Intriguingly, they're birds that do best in disturbed places - once-logged sites, old forest fire areas and even long-abandoned pastures - all in 10 to 30 years old regrowth. A complex checkerboard of shrubs, openings, and fully-cloaked trees, with branches and tangles right to the ground, these sites produce the ideal mix of food and nesting sites.

By the start of June, the males will be staking territory. Brazenly declaring "mine", these characters fly from tree to tree, posing in the sun to sing as loudly as they can.

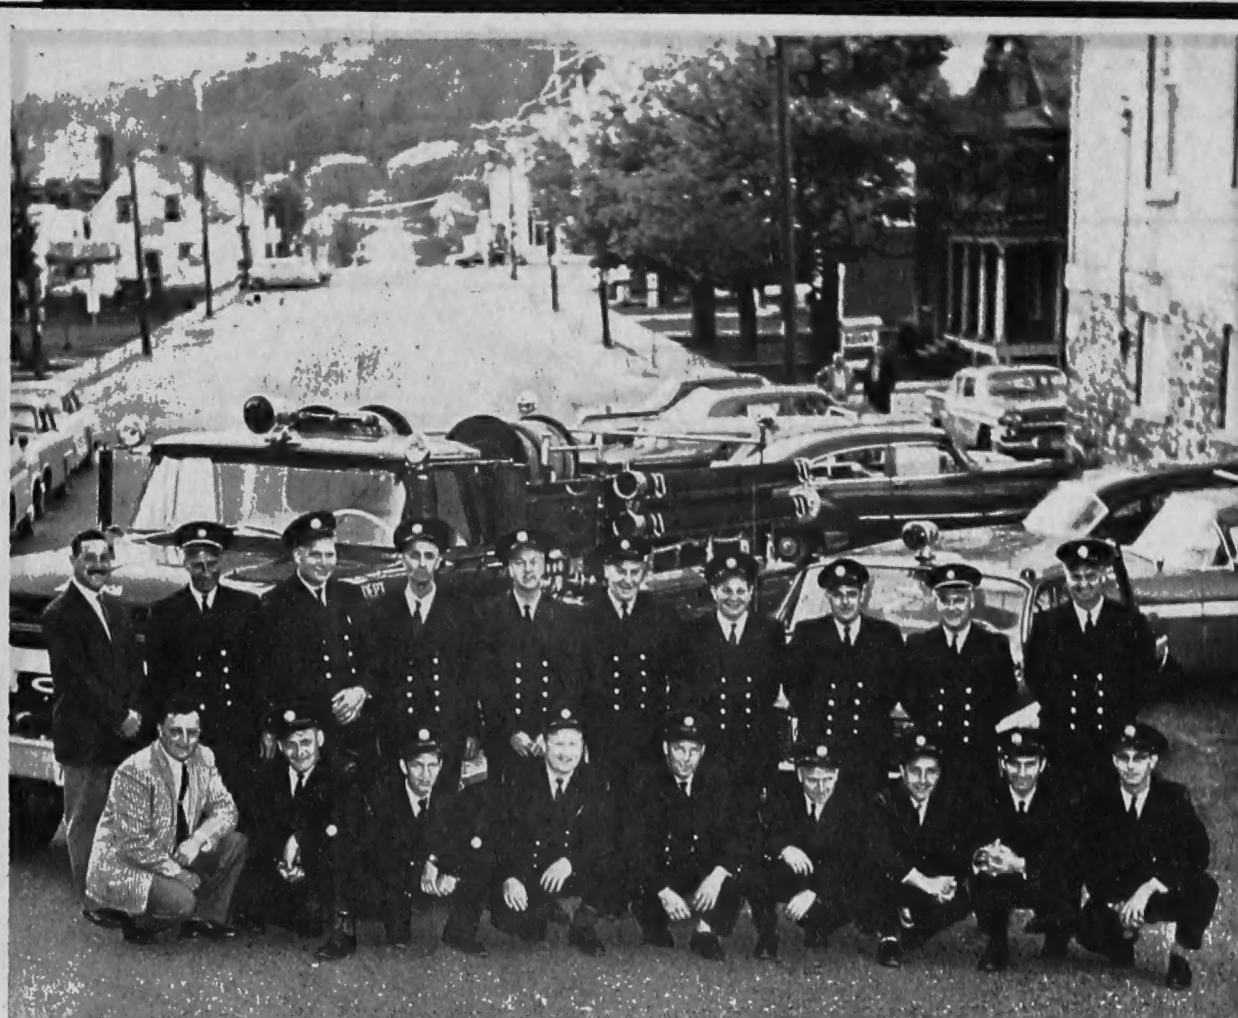

Males react instantly to others' songs, racing to the origin and challenging would-be intruders. Indeed "challenge" is hardly an adequate word to describe the aggressive performance. They luff and flash, and shriek their song. And, if that doesn't work, they'll head straight into fierce combat, crashing and pecking, shrieking and yanking feathers, in a scuffle of awesome proportions.

Females appear to choose their mate, selecting the biggest and loudest male with the best "turf". Sound familiar? Then commences one of the most delicate courting rituals among our birds. His strident territorial declaration yields instantly to a beautiful entreatment. Spreading and drooping his quivering wings, 'till they brush the ground, he sings. Then, crouching with breast virtually touching the earth, head curved back 'till it touches his back, he spreads his raised tail. Waving head and weaving body in an erratic dance, he raises and lowers his wings, in an elaborate alternate flashing of black, white and rose. Acceptance indicated, the two brush beaks and complete the gentle ritual.

"Honeymoon" over, they set immediately to work nestbuilding. A low spot is quickly chosen, usually one to three metres above the ground, in a dense tangle of shrubbery or tree branches. Together they work, gathering the materials into a rather flimsy and crude looking - but purely functional - nest. Criss-crossed twigs, 'lined' with a few fine rootlets or animal hairs make up a platform so thin that you can see through it.

By mid June, three to five bluish green eggs, ornamented with rich chestnut and amber are laid. By early July the chicks will hatch - tiny cloaks of natal down. The parents alternate between split duties - one shading and tending the young, while the other gathers food. But, as the young develop, becoming steadily more voracious.

By 12 days they're feathered and off the nest. Three more and they'll start to fly. By late July, they'll be parent-sized, and learning - by intense parental teaching - the art of rough-seed cracking. Soon, they'll be on their own.

Pic of the Past

This photo of the Haliburton Fire Department was taken around the year 1962 shortly after the department had been formed. The firemen have fought a great many fires since that time and some changes in personnel have also been made up through the years. Front row from the left: Orval Morrison, Mark Schell, Mark Scheffee,

What does equal pay/value mean?

Question

Catherine Denholm

Decent, fair-minded business managers have always provided equal pay for work of equal value. People in such work places have always been paid according to the contribution each has made to the overall product and hence to the financial returns of that business.

Any honorable, good entrepreneur knows what each employee or group of employees is worth to the process. There will be pay schedules but they will not be based on what has been traditionally paid in that town or city to stenographers, receptionists, filing clerks or maintenance people - the pay schedules will reflect the input that each person or group of people has made in that particular business.

Unfortunately most places of work, large and small, do not have that built-in, humane concept of fairness. If women or black people or new immigrants will work for less in categories of traditionally low pay, and because they have financial or family reasons which prevent them from changing jobs, then they are paid less money than the men working at similar jobs in the same building even though they are all hard-working, efficient and making a comparable contribution to the financial returns of the company.

Equal pay for work of equal value does not prop up weak performance. It does not force any company to promote or to keep people on staff who are not productive. Promotions must be earned and offered to all who are qualified even if the new job has always been filled, in the past, by a white, Anglo-Saxon man.

This concept of equality would have come with the changing times even if the women's movement had not pressured for it. All of the old jobs in the work place are changing with computerization, word processors, robots and more. New skills are required which means new pay scales. Equal pay for work of equal value is a fair and effective use of human resources.

Walk tells Indians Canadians care

we use our water as if its source is infinite, and we possibly seldom question its purity.

Frequently, in India, I showed the Echo and Times photos of last year's walkers in the Walk for Wells. I can assure that everyone who saw those pictures expresses a real appreciation for what the walkers, sponsors and other supporters in Haliburton County and elsewhere are doing. One Indian, in particular, with watery eyes, stated also the feelings and sentiments of the others when he said: "India is a poor country; and we are sincerely thankful for whatever financial assistance we can get. However, we are really touched to see that Canadians care enough to walk for the very poor in our country."

Canadians may not be able to share their rich water resources with those who must live in the drought prone areas of our world, but we can express our concern by walking, in a sense, with them in their search for water. The Walk for Water on June 1 (starting from the Minden Municipal Office at 8 a.m.) is not just an annual HAVE or Haliburton County Walk. Symbolically it is a Walk of compassion for the millions of humans in India, Africa and other parts of our world where the very poor are suffering and dying because of a lack of the basic necessities which we take for granted.

On behalf of the neglected, the sick, the hungry, and the thirsty in Third World villages, I appeal to you personally to obtain your Walk form, to get your sponsors, and to walk (with relatives, friends and others) in the Walk for Water.

Walk forms can be obtained at the Echo and Halco in Haliburton; at the Times and Bowes and Cocks Limited in Minden.

Dixie Lee off to a winning start

By JIM MILNE

The Dixie Lee soccer team began their season with a 2-1 win over Gravenhurst Spartans in Gravenhurst last Sunday. The Haliburton team scored midway through the first half. Mike Hatkoski scored after chasing down a ball through the defence. The goalie came well out and blocked the shot, but it rebounded off Hatkoski and he dribbled the ball in to score easily. Gravenhurst tied the score on a penalty shot. Shortly afterward, Gravenhurst was awarded another penalty shot, but the kicker hit the post and the play was whistled dead when he played the ball again. The final goal came in the second half when Mike Hatkoski again out ran the defence.

Gravenhurst has been the top team in the Muskoka Soccer Association for two years. They had only 10 players for this game, but Dixie Lee had a full 14. In the second half Gravenhurst tired. They moved up looking for a goal, and left the centre open. Dixie Lee had a number of chances, but couldn't increase the score.

Dixie Lee will practise in Minden on Thursday at 7:00 p.m. and travel to Bracebridge to play the Juniors at 1:00 p.m.

The Dixie Lee lineup for the opening game was as follows: goal, Andy Shapiera; fullbacks, Rolf Flugel, Harvey Williams, Al Jopling, Mike McBride; midfielders, Ivor Thompson, Shawn Chapman, Kevin Sicard, Wade Woodward; forwards, Mike Hatkoski, Paul Milne, Falk Flugel, Tom Eager, Tim Deremo.

There are still openings on the team for anyone who comes out to practise.

Rained out games to be played before the regular season ends July 16.

Jim Fink, a Drag Lake cottager, was a happy man last weekend when he landed a 24 pound lake trout after a 53 minute fight. He caught the lunger off Rock Point in Drag Lake using a three inch floating rapella on six pound mono line, with a Cardinal 4 reel on a graphite rod. The fish was 37 inches long, with a 24 1/2 inch girth. It was tagged, and its age was estimated at 22 years.

Lakes at capacity

Another navigation season is nearly upon us with the opening date set for May 17. A lot of weather has come and gone and much of the resulting water has gone over the proverbial dam since last October.

The winter was unusual in that a large amount of water came from snow during a thaw at the end of December. Then, January was steady cold afterward.

Approaching spring, the weather was quite cold so that while the snow gradually disappeared from the south and central parts of the watersheds, it remained in the northern areas until the record high temperatures around April 21. A second freshet resulted from this snowmelt, but because rain did not accompany it the flows did not set any records.

On Thursday, May 9, the reservoir lakes in Haliburton and northern Peterborough counties were at 99.3% and the Kawartha contained a small surplus ready for early summer.

Flows were near the limits for safe navigation the weekend of May 12, 13, but expected to decline due to the warm weather.

Reservoir water should not be needed in earnest for some time yet.

ATC dangerous to foolhardy

Youngsters need instruction, Safety League warns

The use of three and four-wheeled all-terrain vehicles is quickly a way of life for many Ontarians. But along with their recent surge in popularity has come increased concern for their potential to cause serious harm, or even death, when not used safely.

Last year, nine people were killed and 212 injured in ATV accidents in Ontario. The majority of victims were male (85%). Thirty-six per cent were 15 years of age and under; another 30 per cent were between 16 and 20 years of age.

Most of the accidents occurred during daylight hours, and a surprising 94 per cent of the drivers were wearing helmets. Alcohol was not a major factor.

Under the Off-Road Vehicles Act, all ATV's must be registered, have third-party liability insurance and all occupants must wear approved helmets. Children under 12 are allowed to operate ATV's under close adult supervision.

ATV's give a deceptive impression of stability because of their wide tread and broad wheels. Considerable practice is required to master the "all-terrain" use, although a beginner may successfully handle the machine on gentle terrain. The appeal and challenge of riding over uncertain terrain, the excitement of risk-taking and the speed capabilities of the ATV all contribute to the accident potential.

The Ontario Safety League stresses that parents must take an active role in the training of all youngsters under the driving age. The owner's manual will describe many important operating techniques, the location of all the controls and their functions, and the necessary owner inspections and maintenance. Check with your local dealer for other safety literature, and possible training courses and clubs in your area. Accompany your child on all ATV outings.

The League warns parents to be sure that your child has developed the skills and maturity needed to operate an ATV safely.

Park seeks volunteers for jobs

In the summer of 1985 Algonquin Provincial Park is offering 15 volunteer positions for persons eager to help maintain a world famous park and to gain valuable experience for future employment. A daily allowance is given to cover food expenses and accommodation is provided free of charge. The positions fall in three program areas.

Park Interior - 12 Positions: This program runs from the first week of June to the end of August and preference is given to those who can commit themselves for the full period. You will work in two person crews, going on canoe trips lasting up to 10 days, helping to maintain portages and campsites on the Park's 1500 km canoe route network. The Ministry supplies canoes, tents, and other needed equipment.

Pioneer Logging Exhibit - two positions: These two positions involve the care and maintenance of Algonquin's Pioneer Logging Exhibit, an outdoor historical museum, as well as interpreting the Park's rich historical legacy to approximately 60,000 annual visitors. The program lasts for 10 weeks (mid June to the end of August) and accommodation is provided at the nearby East Gate staffhouse.

Fish and Wildlife - one position: This position may last for four months (May through August) and involves a wide variety of duties under the direction of the Park biologist, fishing stocking, lake assessment, nuisance bear control and possibly Peregrine Falcon reintroduction. Headquarters will be at the East Gate of the Park.

For more information on the volunteer program contact R. Baldwin, Algonquin Park District Office, Ministry of Natural Resources, Box 219, Whitney, Ontario K0J 2M0, (613-637-2780).

Board honours five employees

Five retiring employees of the Haliburton County Board of Education were honoured last Friday night at the annual board chairman's dinner.

Teacher Mildred Reber, secretary Olive Giles, caretaker Phrona Sisson, secretary Audrey Heywood and bus operator Harold Deacon each received a set of bookends bearing the seal of the local board.

Trustee Julie Hunter, who made the presentation of Mildred Reber, described her as a dedicated teacher who worked hard on behalf of her students and the board. Reber began teaching in 1941 in Apsley and taught in several schools over the course of her 44 year career, including Cardiff, from which she will retire at the end of the school year in June, Wilberforce, Gooderham and Brownedale's Camp Tallpines School.

Olive Giles, who was introduced by Lutterworth trustee Cheryl Murdoch, will retire in June as secretary of the J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School. Murdoch characterized her as "an organizer" with a very professional attitude and "high expectations" of herself and her fellow workers. In addition to her secretarial duties with the board, Giles served as a member of the negotiating team for the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Hydro services limited by strike

Ontario Hydro's services to customers throughout the province will be limited for the duration of the CUPE Local 1000 strike, Al Pertulla, Regional Director Georgian Bay Region said.

In Georgian Bay Region, which includes the Haliburton area, customers can still pay their bills at the Hydro office in Minden between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Since management personnel are able to continue only the most essential services, no new electrical connections will be made until CUPE Local 1000 workers return to work.

Similarly, inspection services will be limited.

"We apologize for any inconvenience the ongoing strike is causing our customers," said Pertulla.

Dysart et al trustee Len Salvatori made the presentation on behalf of the board to Phrona Sisson, who steps down in June from custodial duties at Hodgson Elementary School. He described her as a conscientious worker and a devoted mother who raised "a beautiful family" of seven children. The influence of her "womanly touch" around the school is most visible in the foyer garden, he said.

She began her employment with the board in 1969 as a custodian at West Guilford School and moved to the senior elementary school in Haliburton in 1972.

Salvatori praised her warmly in his brief presentation address, saying that she will be missed.

"I don't know if there's anyone left like her," he said.

Trustee Bonnie Lee Berry conveyed the board's appreciation to Audrey Heywood, a former secretary at Archie Stouffer Public School and Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. She has moved to a new position as executive secretary to the president of a plastics firm in Scarborough.

Harold Deacon, a former bus company owner who retired recently, was introduced by trustee Leroy Eager. Eager, a bus driver, described the occupation as something that "really gets into your blood."

In presenting the set of bookends, Eager wished Deacon "a very happy retirement" on behalf of the board.

Last to be honoured at the dinner was 1985 chairman Paul Wilson. Vice chairman Linda Mumford noted that the responsibilities of the chairman are not easy, and require "time, effort and a lot of determination."

In his response, Wilson thanked his wife Kim for her tolerance of the time he has committed to board of education obligations. He also thanked secretary Joan Fennell for organizing the banquet, and director of education Stuart Baker, who he said has done "a very good job" of filling the "big shoes" created by the retirement of J. Douglas Hodgson last June.

Wilson also thanked trustees for their work on the board's behalf, and added his own appreciation to the five people stepping down from employment with the board.

The banquet, held at Wig-a-Mog Inn, concluded with an evening of dancing.

The Haliburton County Board of Education honoured five employees last Friday night at the annual chairman's dinner. The five are, from left: Phrona Sisson, Audrey Heywood, Olive Giles, Mildred Reber, and Harold Deacon.

Spring Fling set for Sunday

By HAMISH GORDON

It's that Spring Fling time of year again and Haliburton is gearing up for plenty of action on this Victoria Day weekend.

The Dysart et al Recreation committee is organizing and sponsoring a flurry of fun-filled events and a giant fireworks display on Sunday in Haliburton.

The official opening by Master of Ceremonies, Greg Jones, will include some opening remarks from Reeve, Murray Fearrey at 1 p.m. The afternoon's activities will then get under way. Ongoing events, without scheduled times, will include the Fish Derby on Head Lake. Games for kids, volleyball and golf in the park will also be organized by Pam Iles and her assistants, Marla MacNaull, Sue Vuksic, Robbie Thibadeau, Wayne Rivers, and Emma Postlethwaite.

poration is researching the possibilities of a combined infrastructure project and lending corporation being financed by the government.

Campbell will be submitting this combined proposal to the government when viable ideas are on paper. It should take up to six weeks for a response from the government to approve any projects.

Campbell said awareness and input from the public is essential.

The first scheduled event at 1:30 p.m. will be a mini triathlon for all the family. Shuffleboard for the adults and a tennis tournament will also be taking place simultaneously while the kids are having a horse-shoe tournament. Tennis players are asked to bring their own rackets.

Then a canoe race portaging from the United Church parking lot will start at 2 p.m. Meanwhile drylanders should have started playing volleyball and the kids can participate in all kinds of crazy races. A prize is guaranteed for all the youngsters who take part.

At 2:30 kids can try their hand at shuffleboarding in a tournament while others are having a fun game of golf on the "nineteenth green."

By 3 o'clock some people will be ready to relax and take in the Legion Pipe Band serenading the Scottish Dancers at the bandshell.

For kids and grownups who can't sit still there will be a paddle boat race and a horseshoe tournament for the big people.

At 4 p.m. a spectacle of snowmobiles speeding across Head Lake should be interesting. You won't want to miss this stunt, courtesy of Prentice-Berry Limited. For the jazz aficionados, the Highland Dixie Band will be doing their thing while more kids are leaping over an obstacle course.

Then at 5 p.m. everybody just might be sufficiently exhausted to settle down for a picnic and watch the sun set until the grand finale at 9 p.m. when the giant fireworks display will light up the heavens.

For those who count themselves lucky, lottery tickets will be sold all day by Wendy Wells.

Car, truck collide, two people injured

By HAMISH GORDON

A Minden man was charged with careless driving following a collision between a pickup truck and a car, three miles south of Haliburton on Highway 121 last Friday night.

Sheila Barnes, 19, of Wilberforce, driver of the car, sustained lacerations to her head, arms and knee while a passenger complained only of a sore wrist.

Glen Flood, 46, driver of a 1969 Ford pickup truck, was cut on the side of the head.

All three were able to walk to the ambulance which took them to Haliburton hospital for observation.

Ambulance attendants took 10 minutes to convince Flood that he should go to the hospital to have the cut on his head seen to. Flood protested that he would be charged for leaving the scene of an accident.

A nearby resident who was watching television when the accident happened said, "I heard this terrible bang."

OPP Constable Ken Wesley said the pickup truck was heading west towards Minden and the 1980 Dodge Diplomat was going east to Haliburton when they collided. Both vehicles were demolished on the driver's side when the pickup drifted from the right shoulder then over to the eastbound lane near the Kingdom Hall.

According to local residents, the vehicles apparently side swiped each other as Barnes tried to swerve out of the pickup's path. The car came to a stop on the shoulder of the highway 100 feet away from the pickup which stopped in the middle of the highway with a broken drive shaft and rear axle.

Ontario Provincial Police arrived at the scene about 20 minutes after the accident when the driver of the pickup was being taken to hospital.

An OPP spokesman later said that all injured accident victims must be hospitalized before breathalyzer tests can be administered. The accident is still under investigation.

Adoptees seek past before 'regressive' bill

By HAMISH GORDON

Adoptees and mothers who were forced to give up their children are scrambling to retrieve fragments of each other's history before a "regressive and terrible" adoption bill becomes law on July 1, a Children's Aid Society spokesman in Peterborough says.

The CAS in Ontario is appealing for public support to influence Bill 77, passed by the Ontario Legislature, which will make all the background and non-identifying information of the adoption triangle confidential after June 30.

The new law will also prevent mutually consenting adoptees and their real parents from finding each other, unless adoptive parents give written permission to do so.

Betty Young and her team of two researchers at the CAS in Peterborough are trying to process between 50 and 80 requests simultaneously for the disclosure of information to adoptees, biological parents and adoptive parents from the Maritimes to California.

Each request can take up to three hours of checking through files which date back to 1924.

"I think it is essential for adoptees to have these questions answered about their own history. It is part of being a full person. It's particularly vital during adolescence" to understand where we came from, Young said during a telephone interview.

Children's Aid Society statistics reveal that since 1979 more than 42,000 adoptees have registered for disclosure of information about their birth parents. More than half that number were women looking for their biological parents or seeking background history on them.

Birth parents looking for or just concerned about their child's welfare numbered more than 21,000 in the five year period. Only 227 of these were single men looking for the children that they gave up for adoption.

Some 270 reunions between adoptees and their birth parents have been arranged since 1979.

Restauranters, June and Bill Vanderhorst of Haliburton applied to the Lindsay Children's Aid Society for information about their two adopted teenagers three weeks ago when they heard of the new law which was ratified by the Ontario Legislature in December 1984.

"What I am against is that these children who never had a choice to be born and never had the choice of whether to be adopted or not, now won't have the choice to find out any of their own history," Bill Vanderhorst said.

Section 158 of the Child Family Services Act will mean that adoptees such as 13-year-old Mary of Haliburton County won't be able to fulfill her "thrill of a lifetime" to find her birth mother when she grows up if her adoptive parents don't give her the written consent to do so.

Section 158 of the new law will protect people already consented to the meeting.

A report from the Ottawa based group, Citizens Concerned with Adoption says the law "gives parents control" over the lives of their adult sons and daughters that they do not have in any other situation.

"It treats adult adoptees like children and leaves the impression that adoptive parents have a life-long ownership of their children. Ontario will be the only province in Canada with this restriction in adoption law," the report says.

Minister of Community and Social Services Dr. Robert Elgie has appointed Dr. Ralph Garber, the Dean of social work at the University of Toronto as

"During and subsequent to the development of the child family services act many individuals have expressed their views. Some have proposed that the law allow a more open disclosure. Some limited disclosure, while others have requested that the law protect their desires for confidentiality."

Dr. Garber will make recommendations on all aspects of disclosure of information and advise on how those recommendations could be put into operation.

"In all cases he must be sensitive to that very fine balance between an individual's right to know and an individual's right to privacy."

Garber's review is looking at five areas of access to both identifying and non-identifying information.

1. Should non-identifying information be more readily available than it is now, under what circumstances and to whom?

2. What kind of information might be defined as non-identifying?

3. Who should have access to identifying information through the confidential Adoption Disclosure Register?

4. Whose consent should be required for disclosure in addition to that of the birth parent and of the adult adoptee?

5. What role should the adoptive parent play in the adoption disclosure process?

Elgie said he has asked Garber to pay particular attention to the desirability of releasing information when two parties, the adult adoptee and the birth parent consent fully, but considering the interest of the adoptive parents. Currently consent from all three in the adoption triangle is required before information can be released through the adoption disclosure register.

Garber was also asked by Elgie to look at adult sibling access; that is, the desirability and

Please turn to Page 10

'I think it is essential for adoptees to have these questions answered' such as Mary's teenage brother, Paul, who doesn't want to know who his biological relatives were.

"I like these (adoptive) parents better," he said.

In order to retain their privacy neither Mary or Paul wished to use their real names.

The new law also means that if adopted children have a falling out with their adoptive parents they will not be able to seek information for a reunion unless the adoptive parents give their written consent, even if a birth mother has a special commissioner to review section 157 and 158 of Bill 77 which relates to the disclosure of adoption information.

Because Garber isn't expected to submit his report and make recommendations known to the public before Mid-October, Young fears there is nothing to stop the legislation from being implemented on July 1.

"The disclosure of (adoption) information is a very emotional issue for many people - one on which it is difficult to reach consensus," Dr. Elgie said during the appointment proceedings in April.

Giving up daughter 'like death'

'Shirley' looks for clues about the daughter she could not keep

By HAMISH GORDON

When Shirley was forced to give up her daughter to the Peterborough Children's Aid Society 31 years ago "it was like a death" for the Norwood mother who now has three children of her own.

Shirley was a 17-year-old student and the oldest of seven children in her family when the baby girl's aunt and other family friends decided she would have to give up the baby inside her for adoption.

"Oh no, unmarried girls just didn't keep their babies in those days," and abortions were unheard of, Shirley said in a telephone interview with The Echo. "It (adoption) was all decided before the baby was born," she said.

But once Shirley held her baby girl... "Oh I can't describe what it was like. I can still remember the shape and feel of her head and hands" as she held the baby moments after birth on September 12, 1954.

Shirley began her search for Kathleen two years ago "to fill that small hole" always left in her life.

She heard about the charitable organization called Parent Finders Incorporated in Oshawa. She called the CAS in Peterborough who could only give her non-identifying information about Kathleen, who was born at East General Hospital in Toronto. Shirley then registered with Parent Finders. But without consent or an inquiry from her daughter to the Children's Aid Society, further information is confidential under the present law.

The non-identifying information Shirley was given about Kathleen is that she is now married and has a brother who was also adopted. Kathleen's brother became a doctor now working outside the province.

"I'm guessing that Kathleen's adoptive father is also a doctor. I also know that she was raised a protestant."

Shirley has been checking all the churches in

'A man can't imagine what it felt like to hold that child'

"A man can't imagine what it felt like to hold that child," she said.

Shirley couldn't sleep nights for a year as she "mourned" the loss of her baby which she had called Kathleen.

A year later she went back to the Children's Aid Society in Peterborough to be sure Kathleen was alright with her adoptive parents.

Confident that she was in a good home in the Peterborough area and still unable to support the baby, Shirley tried to forget.

Shirley's mother had offered to take care of the baby but that would have meant her mother quitting her job and it would have been hard on the baby too, she said. Being the oldest, Shirley and her mother were also responsible for her six brothers and sisters.

Thirty years later Kathleen's "ghost" hovers in Shirley's mind.

"I have to be sure that she is real and not a ghost," she said.

circumstances under which brothers and sisters - separated by adoption should have access to information about each other. Elgie said he is also interested in the role that counselling should play in the event of disclosure of information or in reunions.

Meanwhile senior ministry officials will be meeting with representatives of the various Children's Aid Societies in order to determine the best course of action to ensure that essential information is available given the provisions of the Child Family Services Act.

the Peterborough area hoping to find the name Kathleen was baptised.

"I don't have much to go on but I'm trying to read between the lines." Because Kathleen hasn't contacted the CAS, Shirley is confident that she must be happy, she said.

Shirley doesn't want to be identified herself because "this is a really sensitive matter. It might shock her to see my picture in the paper and I don't want her to feel compelled to meet me. I just want to know she is out there somewhere and happy."

Shirley is ready for the day Kathleen gets curious and begins looking for her. The family tree she has been investigating for months now is beginning to blossom.

"I'm working on the eighth generation now which goes back to the 1700s," Shirley said.

It seems the mysterious Kathleen could even be linked to royalty.

"I found a Lady Ann McDowell in the family from a newspaper clipping in B.C.," she said.

McDowells, she was told, were supposed to be the names of ladies in waiting to the Queen. It was the most interesting part of the Scottish, Irish and English heritage that Shirley has so far discovered.

When asked to describe herself Shirley said "People tell me I have a nice smile and I'm still fairly slim" at 49 years old. She also revealed that she was five feet one with dark hair, "but it's lighter now," she added.

Shirley and her husband, whom she married at 19, plan to sell their 300 acre farm between Norwood and Warsaw Ontario to cottage near Haliburton County in the summer and live in the southern states during the winter.

Minden debates surplus

- report to council prior to implementation of the program.

After discussion, the motion was amended as follows: "Be it resolved that the motion be amended to read that council believes the Rural and Native Housing Program can be of benefit to this municipality, with regard to future implementation."

With regard for the surplus of the 1984 budget allotment over actual municipal expenditures, council directed a minimum of $30,000 to the 1985 Roads Budget for specific uses designated by the Road Committee that will begin a program of repairs to those rural roads with the greatest need, such amount to be held in the Reserve for Working Funds until a specific priority has been established by the Roads Committee.

Wm. Simmerson was present to express his concern over the condition of the Brady Lake Road. He pointed out that this road needed to be gravelled, graded and brushed. Council confirmed that these deficiencies would be addressed shortly as part of our regular road maintenance program.

By-law 85-26, a by-law to establish a Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee, was passed.

By-law 85-27, a by-law to stop up, close and convey a portion of the original shoreline allowance for road in Lot 8, Concession 4, Township of Minden (Minden Lake), was passed.

Road allowance closing file 4-85 (Stamp et al) was directed to the Planning Advisory Committee for final recommendation.

Bern Berry presented a letter to council regarding the condition of the Cox Farm Road. He requested council to actively enforce the terms of the subdivision agreement concerning Plan 604, and request the present owner, Sherwood Developments, to properly maintain the road.

Council decided that if legal opinion from the municipal solicitor recommends that such actions will not prejudice the municipality's position, the Roads Department will include the summer maintenance of the Cox farm road to adequate standards within their regular program, and pursue payment of such costs as permitted by the relevant development contract with Sherwood Developments.

Proposed modifications to the Official Plan contained in a letter from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing dated March 26, 1985, were dealt with as follows: Proposed modifications 1, 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 were agreed to. Proposed modifications 3 and 5 will not be made as proposed.

Terms of reference for the preparation of a Comprehensive Zoning By-law for the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden were adopted, and funding for this project at the rate of 50% will be requested from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing.

Council formally accepted the allocation of $85,000 under the Ontario Neighbourhood Improvement Program for the 1985/86 fiscal year.

The following accounts were approved for payment: General, $65,835.83; Water, $1,537.69; and Sewer, $3,394.53.

The April road accounts in the amount of $25,305.34 were approved for payment.

Don Booth and Bob Wells were authorized to attend the Municipal Fire Departments Instructors Assoc. annual educational seminar at York University on June 3, 4, and 5, 1985, and the terms of Policy No. 4 shall apply.

A donation in the amount of $25 was made to CHACE Place.

The following items of correspondence were mentioned: request by Parks Canada to hang banner in Main Street advertising 100th anniversary; MTC - notification of 1985 Supplementary Subsidy Allocation for Crooked House Bridge; the Secretary of State of Canada - acknowledgement of a letter regarding Katimavik program; Blue Cross - notification of premium increase; OME Insurance Brokers - confirmation of 1985 premium reduction; Robert Lehman Planning Consultants Ltd. - update on S.P.A. Study progress; Ministry of Tourism and Recreation - approval of grant for paving parking area at Minden Community Centre. Brian Sisson was directed to investigate possible cost sharing methods to finance this project and report back to council; Edgar Brandon - request for information on construction of a road on concession allowance between Concession 6 & 7, Township of Minden, leading off Duck Lake Road. R.C. Schell confirmed that he would advise Brandon of the procedures involved in such a project.

Minutes of the April 11, 1985 meeting of the Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee were adopted.

Councillor Dave Stevens reported that considerable damage had been done to the gate at the Scotch Line Dump. Stevens will report back to council on the cost of cable for use in this location, while R.C. Schell will obtain a written estimate for repairs to the existing gate for insurance purposes.

Acting reeve Ed Pergolas advised council that county council had met to discuss the high increase in the 1985 board levies to all municipalities. County council members were not satisfied with the supplementary information supplied by the board to explain the increase. A committee will be meeting with board officials and will be reported to county council on May 15, 1985.

The members of council agreed that the organizers of the Ride for Sight be advised that participants should wear all safety equipment while on municipal property.

John Miller as Algernon "Earnest" Moncrieff is delighted that the "cunning little" Cecily Cardew (Bonnie Fitzgerald) has accepted his proposal. But only after he accepted the importance of being called Earnest.

Lady Bracknell steals 'Earnest'

Caryl Douglas brought the perfect demeanour to Wilde's comedy

By HAMISH GORDON

The Highlands Little Theatre company finally earned themselves a well deserved standing ovation for their last performance of 'The Importance of Being Earnest'.

It was obvious that Saturday night's full house audience thoroughly enjoyed Oscar Wilde's satirical romantic comedy as much as the amateur Highland thespians enjoyed performing it.

"Cake indeed!" exclaims Gwendolen Fairfax, played by Nancy Robichaud. Gwendolen exhibits her potential to "become like her mother," the matriarchal Lady Bracknell.

But the players didn't seem to relax and let Wilde's brilliant wit work on the audience until Caryl Douglas, as the frumpish and matriarchal Lady Bracknell, brought the play alive with her impeccable accent and demeanour in the third scene of the evening.

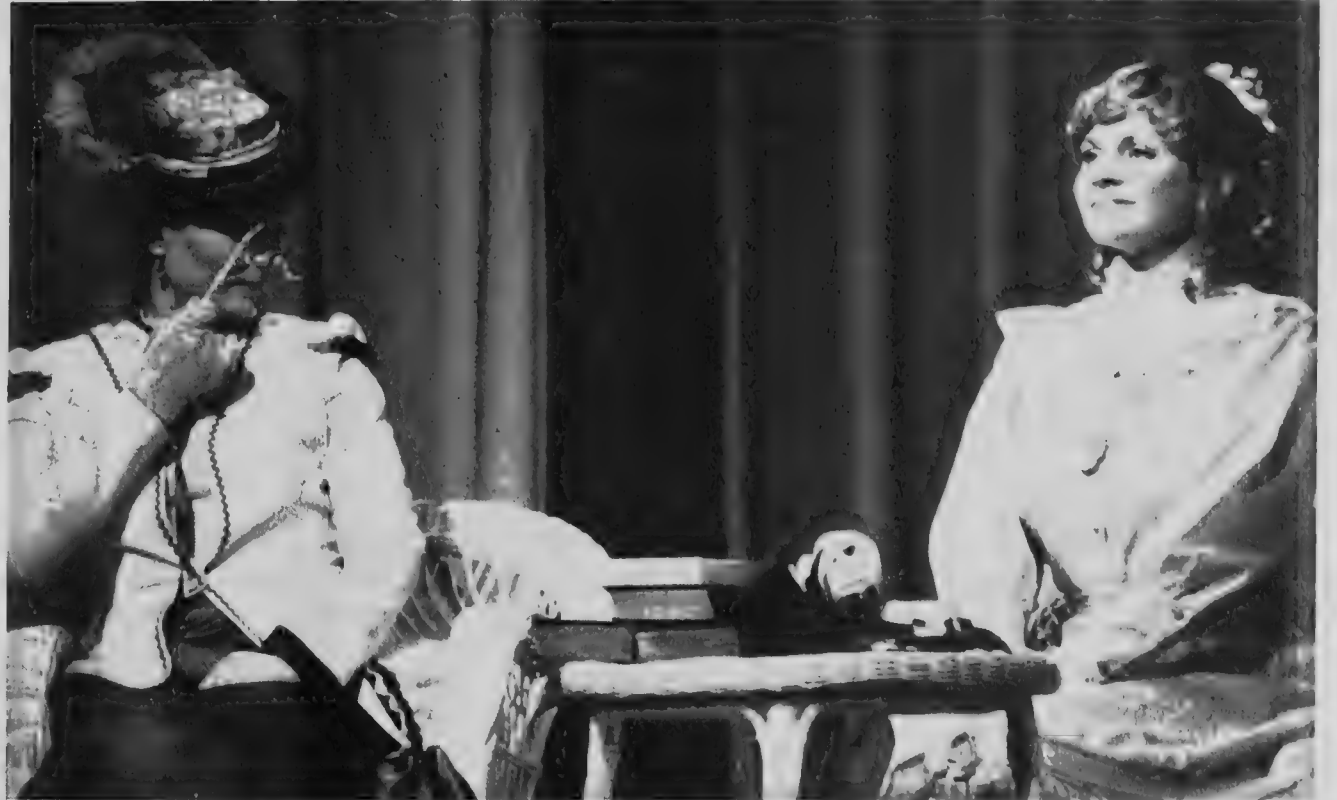

Douglas, who also had the arduous task of transforming parochial highlanders into members of the landed aristocracy as co-director (with Mike Collins), gave a brilliant performance from the moment she appeared to the last bow.

In fact all the women laid into their characterizations with vain, dispicable gusto which delighted the audience. Wilde's sexual preferences were also obvious, judging by the evil female characters he created. It seems Wilde designed 'The Importance of Being Earnest' for actresses rather than the ineffectual male characters he created for this play.

The conspiring bitchiness of both Gwendolen Fairfax, played by Nancy Robichaud, and the cunning little Cecily Cardew, played by Bonnie Fitzgerald, were convincing performances that swept their down trodden men (Ross Mark and John Miller) through the evening. Algernon (Earnest) Moncrieff played by John Miller and John (Earnest) Worth performed by Ross Mark both relied heavily on the piquant one liners with which Wilde spiced their characters. Once they stopped labouring through their lines they turned out genuine performances as victims of the women they worshipped.

The plot revolves around the ladies who won't worship Jack and Algi unless the men change their names to Earnest. The farce of mistaken identities ensues when both Jack and Algi try to convince their amourattas that they are indeed called Earnest. But they are eventually discovered as being named boring old Jack and Algi. Their ladies become distraught and reject their classic turn-of-the-century marriage proposals. Eventually the ladies realize they are destined to become old maids unless they concede to accept their men as Algi and Jack. Throughout it all John Miller's performance was tantalizing for those who missed dinner before the play. He consumed no less than two platters of cucumber sandwiches and a platter of muffins during the two hour play which must account for the genuine artistry of the theatrical make-up around his midriff held in by a white shirt about to pop its buttons. He enjoyed every mouthful of his mischievous role as did the audience. Copious quantities of tea were also consumed during the performance. The romantic subplot between a hysterical governess played by Elaine Schmid and Dale McConnell's Reverend Chasuble, punctuated the performance with the bizarre.

Don Lethbridge's cameo role as the butler was classic as he limped from scene to scene gesticulating the ridiculousness of the whole charade.

Merriman, the butler from the other side of the tracks, played by Doug Brohm, made a convincing prop and seemed to enjoy everybody else's performance more than his own.

Alison Sisson was one of a number of students from J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School who travelled to Quebec City recently to see the sights of Canada's oldest city and to practise their French. Alison had an exciting trip, and in the accompanying story, she recounts the students' adventures.

'J'adore Quebec': student

Four day trip to the old city a thrilling experience

By ALISON SISSON

"Bonjour"... "Bienvenue"... For the past few years these were words I used only from 9:05 until 9:25 each morning in French class. Could these words really be used to communicate? Last week the French language had a chance to come alive for 45 eighth graders from J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton and Cariff Public School.

Thanks to the help of Mrs. Carter, Mr. Childs, Mr. Hoare and Mr. Dean, we were all able to spend four exciting days in Quebec City through the co-ordination of Interface, a company promoting cultural enrichment tours throughout Canada.

Leaving early on Sunday, we travelled nine and a half long hours to Quebec City. That night in the Chateau Frontenac we helped act out a French play, "Charlie".

On the second day we were up by seven o'clock for a delicious buffet breakfast at the Chateau. One of the Interface co-ordinators then showed our group and three other schools from Ontario, slides from Quebec's historical past. We visited some of Quebec City's famous sites, including the Citadel (an old fortress) and an enormous cathedral.

Leisure time followed to shop and wander through the stone houses, stores and old cobblestone streets.

After supper, all the Ontario groups rode buses to the Plains of Abraham where we re-enacted the battle between Wolfe and the British army and General Montcalm and the French. We ended by having a tug-o-war which our team won, then reloaded the buses and headed back to the Chateau. We were a little more tired that night than on the first!

By 9:00 a.m. the next day we were at the ferry docks waiting for girls from a private school in Levis to arrive. The students were partnered with us and rode outside the city to Ste. Anne de Beaupre, another large church. We divided into groups of six, English and French, and decided on "wishes for the world by the youth of the world". For lunch at McDonald's I had to remember to order "Poulet McCroquettes" instead of "McNuggets" and then on we went to a replica of Champlain's ship. Here each one read his wish for the world in his opposite language. The teachers and students returned to the ferry where we said "au revoir" to the French girls and went back to the hotel for supper.

Later that night was our talent show. One of our skits took first place! Then everyone on the tour joined in a dance to end the day.

Then came Wednesday - our last tour day! The whole group gathered in the Interface room

Forestry displayed

By HAMISH GORDON

The Ministry of Natural Resources entertained almost a hundred visitors at the Victoria County Forest on Saturday, to recognize National Forestry Week.

It was the Ministry's second annual Forestry Field Day to give practical illustrations of this year's theme: "You Need Forests".

Guided group tours of about 30 people strolled along a one and a half mile trail stopping at various points to be given demonstrations of the latest forestry and regeneration techniques.

Len Thornett demonstrated the dos and don'ts of chain saw safety and tree felling techniques used by forestry crews. Meanwhile further down the trail, detailed explanations of how to thin or clear the hardwood forest and red pine plantations were given by Fred Rolfe, the ministry's Timber Group Leader. He also explained how interested landowners could yield plentiful harvests but preserve the beauty of their forests.

Rolfe discretely reminded the chimney stacks in the groups that smoking was against the law while walking through the forests, especially during this unusually dry spell.

Gary Clemence was bouncing back and forth through a hardwood forest adjacent to the red pines on a skidder to drag and stack Thornett's felled trees.

A portable sawmill close by was undoubtedly the main attraction. "The thing", powered by 1700 cc Volkswagen engine mounted on a steel framed track, can glide through 20 foot logs anchored to the framework. Alfredo Rico's sawmill was set up in a clearing of the red pine plantation where he would churn out immaculately trimmed boards as fast as Thornett could fell the hardwood dragged out by Clemence on the skidder.

At the end of the two hour crash course, forest firefighters cranked up their tandem water pumps to show off their skill with the "nozzle" which requires two and sometimes three men to hold while they hose down undergrowth or spray the crowns of 100 foot pines.

Minden's forest fire crew has been known to assemble 1600 feet of hose and water pumps in nine minutes during competition. The three forest fire crews in the Haliburton-Victoria area have extinguished four fires already this year.

At base camp free coffee and donuts were waiting to be served to tired and hungry woods men and women.

Sawmill

Chunks of sawdust fly from the one inch teeth (just visible) of this portable sawmill operated by Alfredo Rico. The 1700 cc Volkswagen engine slices up the length of the log, anchored in place, to yield perfect red pine planks. Two lateral blades cut simultaneously with the vertical blade to do the edging. Rico can tow the sawmill behind his pickup truck.

Fire crew

The Campus Quiz Kids from J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School bone up on geography with their coach Roy Hoare last Friday before winning the

Students advance in Quiz

Semi-final round set for June 5, final on June 7

By HAMISH GORDON

The Campus Quiz kids from J. Douglas Hodgson Senior Elementary School in Haliburton have stormed ahead into the semi-final competition on CHEX TV.

During the final 10 minutes of last Saturday morning's Campus Quiz the Haliburton team were behind three or four points. They then leapt into the lead, out quizzing the Norwood Elementary School team during the final bout of quickie quizzes.

Darin Parish, David Emmerson and Jeff Stamp, all 13-year-olds, agreed the quickie quiz session is the most enjoyable part of the gruelling half-hour show.

Coach Roy Hoare says "our boys are so classy on TV" and is confident that they could win the 30 volume set of Encyclopedia Britannicas for the school. But Darin Parish and Jeff Stamp said with tongue-in-cheek they are only interested in "all that fame and fan adulation" when they win the finals on June 7. But they must first win the semi-finals on June 5.

They have now beat out 28 other schools in the Peterborough area and "win or lose they have been good representatives of Haliburton whom we should all be proud of," Hoare said.

The Campus Quiz competition requires the students to have a fluent knowledge of geography, math, current events, general knowledge, spelling, TV shows, animal species and finally the hardest part - rock videos.

The two grade 8 and one grade 7 honour students have been meeting for training sessions with Hoare two or three times a week since March.

The Echo will have coverage of those games next month.

Programme helps adults improve reading

Did you know

by Bambi Gilder

Did you know...that the Craig Reading and Educational Services Inc. located in Orillia offers individualized programmes for people who require training in basic reading skills?

If you have a particular problem or know of someone who would like to learn or upgrade his/her skills, such as:

- Reads, but too slowly to be practical
 - Requires tutorial work to prepare for job/skill training
 - Requires transitional training
 - Has a learning disability
 - Mechanical reading problems (e.g. loss of place, reversals)
 - Doesn't know alphabet, and related phonic skills
- why not look into the various programmes available? Each student's programme is specially structured and the centre's low student-to-teacher ratio lets them respond in an individualized way. Goals will depend on level of ability at intake and academic/occupational plans. Students have ranged in age from 15 to 54. So, if you feel that you could benefit from this programme, why not call the centre at (705) 325-8866 and inquire as to what Craig Reading can offer or contact your County Information Centre at 457-2733 for further information and referral.

We are located in the Drag River Municipal Building in Haliburton and our office is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., weekdays.

for a final rally and to answer questions on the things we'd learned in the past few days. The trip was over too soon. By noon we were boarding the bus to journey back home.

Thinking back, I'm glad I went! I have a new pen pal who lives in Quebec, can spot old French architecture, have walked over cobblestone streets and know how to say "more food please" ("Encore de la nourriture s'il vous plait) in French. How do I feel about my trip?

Gallery presents student artists

The Rails' End Gallery is now presenting its annual Students' Show. On visiting the gallery you will see over 50 pieces of children's work including winning art work by Haliburton County students, life size body shields by Grade 4 craftsmen, and masks by artist Rae Anderson. Rae has been working in the county schools for the past two weeks under the Creative Artist in the Schools Program.

We would like to thank the Ontario Arts Council and the Haliburton County Board of Education for their financial support in allowing this creative program to go ahead in our county. This is the third year the Guild has initiated this program and been supported by the OAC and our Board of Education.

Again this year we were able to award student scholarships to the Haliburton School of Fine Arts to 35 students, thanks to the donations of local businesses, service groups and individuals. These children are awarded a one week free art or craft program at the School of Fine Arts.

We would like to express our thanks to the following organizations and people for their generous donations to make this program possible: Haliburton Trout Farms, Harvest Restaurant, Lakeview Motel, Emmerson Lumber Limited, The Times, Curry Motors Ltd., Cordell Interiors Inc., IGA Dollo Bros. Food Market Ltd., Rotary Club of Minden, L. Vanlieshout Real Estate Ltd., Blair Sand and Gravel Limited, Minden Drug Store, Ontario Men Teachers Federation, Halbright Markets (IGA), Raymond Selbie, Good Management Enterprises Ltd., Black's Hardware, Haliburton Lumber and Enterprises Ltd., Rotary Club of Haliburton, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Haliburton, Haliburton Family Medical Centre, Northernways Transit Limited, Giles Connelly, Haliburton Women Teachers Association, Paulette's Antiques and Gifts.

Special thanks once again to the Women Teachers' Association for their large donation.

During May, we will be sponsoring a children's program each Saturday. Watch the 'Coming Events' column for times and dates of the events.

In the Waiting Room Gallery we have a wonderful collection of "limited edition prints" by wildlife artist Marc Barrie.

We welcome everyone to visit the gallery, browse through our boutique, and see our most recent exhibitions.

day, filling in for Rev. George Elliott. We are always glad to have Rev. Westhaver come to us. He always has an interesting message without a bit of fuss. We thank Rev. Westhaver for coming to us today, and Fred Ballard who came the music to play.

Doris showed us three movies Tuesday afternoon which made us smile.

Down at fun and fitness playing bucketball Doris Vaughan made the highest score of all.

Our entertainers came again Wednesday night: Earl Cooper from Grass Lake, Kathy Owens from the Frost Centre. We knew we were going to have fine music as soon as they entered. With Kathy on the piano keys and Earl on the violin, the music fills the room. Anyone with itchy feet could hardly sit still. Then Kathy played the accordion and sang some good old songs. Please come back to us again before too long.

Pastor and Mrs. Ward Taylor and ladies of the Full Gospel Lighthouse in Haliburton came down to us on May 9. They not only brought and served lunch, but they played and sang as well. Pastor Taylor is a great pianist and his wife has a lovely voice. The way they played and sang for us made us all rejoice.

We would like to thank the bingo callers who came to call the numbers on Thursday night, Doug Ripley and Paul Traverser, who did the job just right.

Congratulations to Millie Wood we would like to say who had a birthday this tenth of May.

This is nurses week and I know some I miss, but I tried to treat all by a hug and kiss.

Friday afternoon Grace Coburn came to lead us in a sing-a-long, Doris the music to play. Grace had some humorous poems and three numbers to sing. Thank you for coming Grace. Much pleasure you bring. Then Doris led us in a very interesting subject, family life in our time compared to family life today.

Getting your temperature taken isn't quite like it used to be in this electronic age. As students from Grade 2 at Victoria Street School found out on a tour of Haliburton Hospital last week, a machine has just about replaced mercury thermometers. The digital display is extremely precise, and the disposable plastic cover on the probe keeps things hygienic.

Students pay visit to local hospital

A first visit to a hospital can be a frightening experience, especially if it happens when you're sick or injured. That's why at Haliburton Hospital, staff have organized an annual event in which youngsters from Victoria Street Public School take a tour of the facility and get some idea of how a hospital operates.

When the Grade 2 class arrived at the front door last Thursday afternoon they were greeted by nurse administration Marlene Bennett and since it was Nurses Week, a Cabbage Patch doll representing Florence Nightingale also was part of the proceedings.

The youngsters were taken in small groups, led by some of the hospital's teenage volunteers, to various rooms where nurses and nursing assistants had planned a number of demonstrations.

In one room the students were shown how a newborn baby is cared for in the hospital, and they also had their temperatures taken with the newest type of digital thermometer which may soon make the old glass, mercury type obsolete.

A visit to the emergency ward gave the youngsters a chance to listen to their hearts, see pulses displayed on an electronic graph, have their blood pressure taken and learn about throat swabs and urine samples.

In an adjacent treatment room, a Raggedy Ann doll was perched on a wheeled bed and draped in preparation for stitching. As well as learning how a doctor sews up a cut, the youngsters got a chance to give the doll a 'needle' under careful supervision.

The last demonstration of the tour provided an inside look at a local ambulance, complete with attendants Bob English and Pat Kennedy, who answered a flurry of questions from the inquisitive visitors.

As the pictures on this page show, it was an educational and enjoyable experience not only for the students, but for the medical staff who were their hosts.

Man must end feud with wolves

Editor's note:

R.D. Lawrence is Canada's foremost nature writer with 18 books published in 16 countries and 13 languages. He is a resident of Haliburton County. This article is the second in an occasional series.

Readers wishing to comment on it may do so in care of The Echo, Box 360, Haliburton, K0M 1S0.

By R.D. LAWRENCE

Shewano, leader of the wolf pack, is a big, handsome animal of reddish-fawn color and mystical amber eyes. Typical of his species his rule is absolute; but he is no despot, being himself governed by the disciplines imposed on all wolves everywhere by thousands of years of natural order. Because of this, he is aware that the well-being, the survival, of the pack is his responsibility. He leads by example most of the time, and merits the respect and affection of his subordinates. When he must punish, he does so swiftly and with discretion, then as quickly offers forgiveness and reassurance. He is clearly aware of his Alpha status, advertising his dominance in the way that he carries himself, his entire being reflecting dignity and confidence and great intelligence. But by his actions he shows that he is also conscious of his duties, a fact he made clear to me last April within minutes of our meeting.

Shewano and four subordinates share a well-wooded, four-acre enclosure in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. These wolves are accustomed to the sight of humans, but they are only semi-socialized and therefore quick to hide if alarmed. Otherwise, they behave much like their free relatives; except that they do not hunt. Food consists of animals killed by traffic on area roads; when these are scarce, the pack eats meat bought in a local supermarket, usually chicken halves, as was the case on the day of my visit.

After long experience with wolves in Canada, I readily identified the leader and determined the descending social standings of the pack, for such hierarchy is found in all wolf societies. Similarly, I expected the animals to be reserved in the presence of strangers.

Wolves studied us

From a distance of twenty yards, partially screened by the trees and foliage into which they retreated on our arrival, each wolf studied us. The leader stood in front of his subordinates, more exposed, his nostrils twitching at the scent of food. Drawn out by hunger, Shewano loped towards the fence, but his body language -- the way he moved and carried himself -- told me that he was nervous. Jim Wuepper, who keeps the wolves, threw half a chicken over the wire. It was still ten feet off the ground when Shewano leaped and closed his jaws on it with a loud thunk.

Thor, a three-year-old male, now moved forward at a run. Shewano in turn ran towards his subordinate; then, from a distance of about three yards, he literally threw the chicken at Thor, who caught it in the air and retreated into the woods to eat. In this way, one at a time, Shewano fed his pack; only when the last subordinate had been given its share did the Alpha take his own ration into the trees. For some minutes afterwards the only sounds heard were made by the champ of fangs in meat and by the cracking of bones.

In the wild, a lead wolf exerts his dominance and eats first, followed in order by his mate and the other wolves; this is not because he is selfish, but rather because he and his Alpha female are the guardians of the pack and must remain strong for the good of all.

'In an undisturbed environment wolves are finely attuned to the wilderness and are completely free of the sins attributed to them'

Shewano, with the intelligence and sensitivity of his kind, determined that there was need for caution in the presence of strangers, so he deliberately faced possible danger on his own to ensure that his subordinates could eat unmolested. Such risk-taking by a leader is by no means untypical. I have seen many similar examples in wild wolves during the 30 years in which I have studied them. Indeed, those of us who really know the wolf and have deep empathy with him, discover to our frequent astonishment that he possesses all our best attributes, but none of our weaknesses. Indeed, judging by those humans who still maintain close family unity, wolf hierarchy is not much different to that which probably governed early hominids, when related individuals lived and worked together for the survival of the unit.

Wolves do quarrel within the pack, but despite loud snarling and the flashing of fangs, serious injuries are rare; at worst individuals may suffer a few bloody nips. Most often such interactions are expressions of respect and affection usually accompanied by painless, ritual biting that serves to emphasize unity and personal reassurance. Noisy, restless outbreaks always occur during the mating season, a time when wolves celebrate the impending union of the Alphas in anticipation of the most welcome event of all: the arrival of pups. When the young are born, the pack is gripped by joyous excitement. There is much socializing, tail wagging and eager whining at the den entrance as adults sniff and listen for the feeble cries of the whelps. When some three weeks later the stubby little pups totter out of the den, every wolf makes a fuss of them and quite often the Beta female appoints herself as nursemaid, allowing the mother to rest after her ordeal. But despite the fact that wolves virtually dote on their young, a form of birth control is practised by the species.

If a pack survives the winter with its numbers undiminished, only the Alpha female mates and smaller litters appear to be the rule. Usually, the Alpha bitch is sexually bonded with the Alpha dog, but she may mate with the Beta male, if, as does occur, the leader shows no interest in her. Other females in the pack also come into estrus (heat), but in the presence of the dominant pair the sexual drives of all subordinate wolves are psychologically inhibited. If, nevertheless, a subordinate female presents herself to a subordinate male, the Alpha wolf, often assisted by his mate, will punish her and prevent mating. But if pack numbers have been reduced during the preceding winter by accidents, illness, or human control measures, the Alpha female tends to produce larger litters and it is not uncommon for the Beta female to mate and give birth to young.

Highly socialized species

Within its native range, the wolf is undoubtedly the highly socialized of all wild species and the ways in which he interacts with his fellows and governs his affairs are truly remarkable; and it may well be that once the wolf is better understood, he will offer man some lessons in deportment and may even teach us how to manage our environment in ecologically sound ways; this despite the fact that our species has for centuries hated, feared and relentlessly persecuted the wolf, attributing to him despicable traits that are found only in our own societies.

On the other hand, available evidence tells us that primitive people have always held the wolf in high esteem, while prehistoric man, seeing the advantages of an alliance with such an efficient predator, tamed him and used him in the hunt, today's many breeds of dogs being the legacy of that ancient liaison.

The feud between man and wolf undoubtedly began in Europe during historic times when burgeoning human populations caused more and more forested land to be cleared for agriculture. As the wilderness shrank and prey animals declined sharply, wolves started to kill domestic stock; at about the same period rabies, a disease that in the wild is checked by natural barriers, reached epidemic proportions when it encountered the many vagrant domestic dogs that in those times were free to wander from community to community. As the epidemic spread, near-starving wolves entered villages in search of prey, killing dogs and domestic stock. People were bitten by rabid animals and condemned to a dreadful death -- this was long before Pasteur developed the rabies vaccine -- and large, wolf-dog hybrids marauded singly and in small packs, attacking people and animals. Because of these things, hatred for the wolf became so deeply rooted in the human psyche that it survives unabated today, despite the fact that it has been definitely established that healthy wolves do not attack humans, although they do at times prey on domestic animals.

Emotional stress

In an undisturbed environment, wolves are finely attuned to the wilderness and are completely free of the "sins" that have been attributed to them. They are hunter that kill out of need when opportunity arises, but they are not wanton, cruel, or greedy.

Among themselves wolves are generally peaceful, although occasional territorial disputes between packs produce skirmishes during which an individual may be killed; but such altercations are few and similar to those that occur among all species of animals, none of which -- with the exception of man -- make war on their own kind. Recently, however, events in Michigan's Isle Royale (declared a national park in 1940) produced evidence to show that severe emotional stress can cause wolves to make war on one another when they are exposed to long-term environmental imbalances.

After wolves were eliminated from Isle Royale in the 19th Century, they did not again become established there until the late 1940s, when a breeding pair from Ontario evidently used ice build-up to cross the 18-mile stretch of Lake Superior that separates the Canadian mainland from the American island.

Before arrival of the wolves, the isolated moose population had undergone repeated peaks and crashes; but after the breeding pair built up its numbers and formed other packs, the moose seemed to stabilize and a balanced predator-prey relationship was thought to have been attained. In reality, it is likely that the hunters could not at first increase at a rate sufficient to maintain true balance, while the prey continued to make small, but significant gains during the next 20 years despite minor fluctuations. By 1970, 1,200 moose were clustered on the island. As food dwindled, so did the moose; seven years later only 500 of them remained alive after a crash that was mainly due to malnutrition and stress-related ailments rather than to predation.

Fighting breaks out

Wolves began to increase during this same period and by 1980 had climbed to 50 individuals distributed among five packs whose members nevertheless continued to respect each other's territories. Then, just as the moose population was showing signs of recovery, stress due to competition for food caused the wolves to go into rapid decline. The packs invaded each other's territories; fighting broke out. A number of wolves died of malnutrition, disease and accidents, but investigators also found carcasses of wolves that had been killed by other wolves. This warfare, the first of its kind to be documented, appears to have been the major cause of a decline so rapid that in two years it reduced wolf numbers by 72 per cent -- from 50 to 14! The survivors were divided into one pack of four, three separate breeding pairs, and four lone wolves.

When prey animals go into a decline in a wild, mainland habitat, wolf packs migrate to new territories; but in this case, being captives on an island the biology of which had been radically altered by man in the late 1800s and early 1900s, the wolves of Isle Royale sought to relieve their stresses by resorting to internecine slaughter, just as humans have been doing for thousands of years; and for similar reasons, for overpopulation, territorial jealousy, and intense competition for material goods (food in the case of wolves and other animals) promote the same stress reactions in people as they do the wolf, an animal whose social unit closely resembles our own.

As a biologist who has spent more than 30 years observing animals in the field, especially wolves, I feel that the recent and highly unusual conflicts that developed between wolves on Isle Royale are of major biological importance to stress researchers. Indeed, long-term study of the wolves of Isle Royale, their environment, and the animals that share it with them could well lead to a full understanding of stress and might even point the way to lasting peace among human societies.

Minden UCW to add $744 to CATscan fund

Submitted

Minden's United Church Women recently raised $744.50 in aid of the CAT Scan fund.

The group, which meets every second month, arranged to have a speaker from "CAT Scan" as their guest in May. A team from Peterborough came to provide the women with an explanation of the CAT Scan program.

On hand were Jack McDonald of Haliburton, local co-ordinator; Mabel Brannigan, his assistant; Jerry Peters of Peterborough, campaign chairman; Helen Wilcox, vice chairman; and Wally Hicks, chief X-ray technician at St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough.

The slide presentation and the answers given to questions were in layman's terms. Participants said it was a very informative evening.

For anyone who has not been contacted directly - there are boxes available in many stores where one can contribute or if you prefer to leave it with the Toronto Dominion Bank, they have established a trust fund to look after your donation until it is transferred to Peterborough. Receipts are available for tax purposes. These are temporary and will be replaced some time later by official receipts.

If you've been looking for a special book, drop in at our local library as I've been told there has been an exchange of books recently.

We were all very sorry to hear of Maisie Kelly's accident recently, in which she suffered a broken hip and is now in Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay.

Welcome home to the folks who have just arrived home from their Western travels.

Welcome back also, to Bill and Win Wilson, who have done extensive travelling in the southern areas of the United States.

I've been told this past week that I will stop at nothing in order to write this column. On Saturday, May 4, I decided to really get busy and finish cleaning up around outside before I got going at painting the deck and at planting. Most of my leaf raking was finished, flower beds raked out and some of the summer things brought out from the tool shed. It was then that I decided to clean out the carport and really had it starting to look pretty good. My husband came out and we made a neat pile along one wall of the winter's firewood which had been falling down and looking messy. I began sweeping up when I noticed a lot of firewood that was too big for our fireplace, so when Bill said it would have to be cut, I told him I'd pile it along the back rail fence when he was inside the house. I had to carry it across an embankment to stack it and was doing fine until I picked up the last and heavy log. I stepped onto a sheet of plywood and the weight of the wood, I suppose, caused me to slip downward on the hill. The log rolled on down and so did I but when I stopped, my left foot was up under my left shoulder, leaving me amazed at my acrobatic skill. Following a painful trip to Minden Red Cross hospital I went on to Ross Memorial, where I was to meet Dr. Yardley, an orthopedic surgeon. Following further Xrays I was left in a bed with a big hoop and poked with needles all night. On Sunday morning I was taken to surgery and Monday night I thought it was still Sunday morning. On Thursday, Bill called for me and brought me home and so far I've spent most of the time in bed and hurting. I have a very heavy cast from toes to just below my left knee and a pair of crutches. The ankle is broken on both sides and required two pins. There was extensive damage. So much for my gardening this year. Thanks to everyone who sent cards, phoned came to visit at hospital and to family members who brought such lovely flowers. All the nurses I came in contact with were just super, the porters who took me to physiotherapy and out to the car when I left were very friendly, caring young men, Dr. Yardley is a very dedicated and informative young man, and was in to see me every evening. I have to go back in late June for more Xrays and then further therapy. The ladies who were in to clean our hospital room were very friendly. Thanks to the Coby Legion Bingo who sent me the pretty card with 68 signatures written in it. Some of the folks marked in they were from Sault Ste. Marie, England, and Australia.

I hope Alex Graham is feeling better by now.

The ground work of the Norland Recreation Centre has been laid in Ward Memorial Park, adjacent to the ball park. Reeve David Graham expects the community and recreation centre will be completed by mid October at the latest.

Norland recreation centre finished by mid-October

By HAMISH GORDON

Construction of Norland's new recreation centre in Ward Park is well under way after years of fund raising efforts by the Norland community.

Laura Gaunt, treasurer of the Ladies Auxilliary of the Norland Firefighters Association, handed a $20,000 cheque over to Norland-Laxton Reeve David Graham last week. She said during a ceremonial meeting that she was happy to be relieved of the financial responsibility for such a large sum.

Reeve Graham said that it was thanks to the efforts of the whole community that Norland is finally going to have a recreation centre.

"We've been without a community centre for so long. It's a credit to groups such as the Ladies Auxilliary. The Norland firefighters have also promised another $5,000. I think it's terrific. Everyone has worked so hard - it's kind of like a dream come true," Graham said.

The whole town of Norland has supported the concept of a recreation and community centre since the new council convened two years ago.

Since its conception, plans for the 7,470 square foot all-purpose centre have been revised several times to keep construction costs down. The total cost has been estimated at $166,000 with 50

Swimmer sought for Red Cross Norland News

by Kelly Graham

Well, the signs of summer are becoming more and more apparent. In just three weeks the students of FFSS will be finished their school year - except for exams of course. The end of the school year is something all students, including me, eagerly anticipate.

Here's some news from the New Kawartha Water Safety Programme. The members of the KWS committee are searching for a qualified Red Cross leader for the month of July. It is concerning a job at the waterfront swim programme in Cobocok. If you are interested call Charlene Cross at 454-3361.

The committee is also holding a bake sale to raise funds for the programme. The sale will be held in the IGA parking lot in Cobocok on Saturday, May 18. I hope everyone will drop by and support the New Kawartha Water Safety Programme.

Finally, if you wish to enrol your child in the programme registration will be held on June 15, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Cobocok Lions Hall. The programme is a great one for not only teaching kids to swim but teaching them water safety and life-saving skills.

On Sunday, May 19 the annual Norland fireworks display will be held. The display will be held around dusk at Ward Park in Norland and will be supervised by the Norland Volunteer Firemen. Donations will be collected at the gate entrance.

I have a correction to make: last week I reported that the Norland Women's Institute raised $625 for CAT Scan at a recent dance. In reality the money was raised at a dinner. My apologies to the ladies and congratulations on their fine fund-raising effort.

Some of you may have noticed some construction going on beside Norland's old post office. In that spot a war monument is being erected to honour the brave men from this area who fought and gave their lives in the last two world wars.

On Thursday, May 9 the annual Kawartha West track and field meet was held at Fenelon Falls Secondary School. The competing schools were Fenelon, Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, L.C.V.I., I.E. Weldon, and Bethany Hills private school. It was an afternoon of competition and fun for all involved. The track meet was won (total points in all events) by Haliburton, closely followed by Fenelon, then L.C.V.I., I.E. Weldon and Bethany Hills.

Officers for Legion have been elected

Wilberforce News

by Winnie Schofield

The Wilberforce Branch 624 of the Royal Canadian Legion held an election of officers on May 7 at the Legion hall. The meeting was conducted by Zone Commander Ewart Wannamaker and Deputy Zone Commander Angus Rupnow, both of Bancroft. Those elected for the 1985-86 year were: president Pat Gallen, 1st vice president Walter Shaver, 2nd vice president Percy Allen, secretary Phyllis Gallen, treasurer Murray Agnew. Executive members are: Reg Schofield, John Jackson, Ed Scott, Earle Travis and Don Shosenberg. Rockie Welsh of Bowmanville, past president of the Ladies Auxiliary, officiated at the Ladies Auxiliary election of officers. President for the coming year will be Victoria Agnew, first vice president Phyllis Bowen, second vice president Aylen, secretary Phyllis Gallen, sergeant-at-arms Olive Atkinson, convenor Sally Mather. The remaining members will serve as executive.

A special event during the evening of business discussions was the unexpected arrival of the Girl Guide leaders Roberta Walsh, Mary Barker and Jan Watson, accompanied by some of the Guides and Brownies. They presented a gift of appreciation to the ladies of the Auxiliary. A floribunda rose bush was received with delight by the ladies who immediately found a choice spot for the bush where it will receive the best of care and attention.

Mother's Day for many brought gifts, cards and phone calls. Some took mom out to dinner. One of the most thoughtful ways of showing appreciation came from the children of Sylvia Cameron when they joined forces to give mother's house a new coat of paint. The ladies of the Tory Hill United Church held a Mother's Day luncheon on Saturday, May 11 at the Tory Hill Community Centre. A bountiful assortment of home prepared dishes was presented and enjoyed by hungry visitors. Let's have a repeat for Father's Day.

That queen size quilt being raffled for the benefit of the Neighbourhood Watch will be awarded to the owner of the winning ticket on May 24. Please turn in all stubs and unsold tickets to Adele

Barnes or the municipal office as soon as possible.

The Deanery meeting of the Anglican Church Women was held on Thursday at the Anglican Church in Fenelon Falls. Three members of St. Margaret's Church in Wilberforce attended the meeting. The morning started with a service of Holy Communion, followed by a short business meeting, at which time an invitation was extended to the Deanery to meet at St. Paul's Church in Lindsay for the fall meeting. After an enjoyable pot luck lunch the afternoon session took place. Two workers from the Downtown Churchworkers Association were the guest speakers. It was very interesting to hear of their work. Clothing is given to people in need, also groceries in a time of emergency. A great deal of help has been given to refugees and a new project of teaching illiterate adults to read and write is taking place. A great variety of services are rendered to people in time of need. Moorelands camp is run by this organization to help underprivileged children. One of the newest projects is a worker who spends from 6 p.m. to 1 or 2 a.m. each night on the Yonge St. strip, trying to befriend young prostitutes. The worker tries to help the young girls receive needed education or training which will enable them to find work. Gifts of clothing, bedding and groceries were given to the organization, as well as the collection taken at the morning service. The ACW members left the meeting feeling that they should do much more to assist this worthy organization. The above article was received from Mrs. Sylvia Cameron. Coming on Saturday is the annual Kintoria Day when the South Algonquin Kinsmen hold their auction at the Wilberforce arena. In the evening a dance takes place in the arena with music by "Little Caesar and the Consoles". There is something of interest for everyone. Proceeds from the day are used for the betterment of the community. There is still time to get your discarded articles to the Kinsmen. Call any member for pick up. Two showers are being held on May 19. A baby shower for Susan Musclove takes place at the Tory Hill community centre at 1 p.m. A bridal shower will be held for Heather Barnes at 1:30 at the Legion hall.

Our local ladies' bowling team, composed of three Wilberforce residents, two from Highland Grove and captain Sandy Smith from Elephant Lake Lodge, joined with other league members in banquet night held at the Oasis Restaurant near Bancroft on Tuesday, May 7. Please turn to Page 23

Sarah Nash, a Grade 1 student at Dorset Public School, created this picture of a girl on a horse. It is hung at the Rails' End Gallery in Haliburton as part of a children's art show all this month.

Some of the following news items should have been in last week's column but I was back to Peterborough for follow up treatments after my second round of ear surgery. Thanks to Dr. Ken Sewchand, my hearing is improved and I am assured by him it can only get better with time.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Thomas of Peterborough were in North Bay attending the wedding of their nephew, Gregory Thomas and Bernette Martin recently. Greg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Thjmas of Sturgeon Falls.

Mrs. Doris Redner is staying with her sister, Mrs. Shirley Edmunds of Niagara Falls, for some time. Jim Redner came and got them and they stayed in Toronto with him before going on to the falls.

Remember our church sale in July when house cleaning. Someone else may have use for the article you wish to discard.

I hope you had as nice a Mother's Day as I did, starting with breakfast in bed, a luxury not as enjoyed by Canadians as much as in my native Britain, where one starts at an early age being awakened in the morning for school or work with a cup of hot tea.

Welcome home from Florida to Maurice Windsor and his son, Garth and Helen of Hornepayne, who flew down and drove Maurice home. Also welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Bud Medley, who spent the winter down there, and to our friendly Mary Bell and husband who enjoyed a two week vacation down that way.

Most of us had our young folks home for the Mother's Day weekend.

The chartered bus left here this Monday morning bound for a day's outing at Cullen Gardens and Oshawa shopping malls. With luck rain will stay away.

Please call 489-2924 with any items for this column.

A warm welcome to those visitors who may be spending the Victoria Day weekend in our beautiful Highlands for the first time and to all our friends who return year after year. Drive carefully and have a happy and safe holiday.

Best wishes to the owners of the new Jug City and Garden Centre at the corner of 118 and 35 Highways which will be open daily until 10 p.m.

Canada Day plans discussed

Welcome home to George and Mary Perozanin who have spent the winter in Florida. In fact, welcome back to all who have been away but whom I just don't happen to see.

The recreation centre committee has been meeting to discuss plans for Canada Day. If you can contribute in any way, at bazaar tables, contests, or have a talent musically, let them know by phoning Carol Stamp, Perry Morrison or Brian and Elsie Henderson.

Maple Lake United Church is holding a Bargain and Bake Sale on May 18 from 11:00 to 3 p.m. to raise money for their building fund. Come and get what you need at bargain prices!

Once again Camp Medeba did their neighbourhood a service by the fine clearing up work done in seniors' grounds and gardens on Saturday by the young people associated with the camp. Many thanks to all who organized and participated in the event.

In the Anglican calendar the 29th of June is known as the feast day of St. Peter and St. Paul. This year St. Peter's Church, Maple Lake is celebrating the occasion by having a former rector, the Rev. James O'Neill come to the Township of Cardiff:

We have examined the consolidated balance sheet of the Corporation of the Township of Cardiff as at December 31, 1984 and the consolidated statement of operations for the year then ended. Co-Ro-No trade centre set to open

Coboconk News

by Shiela Lake

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bowins attended the wedding of her daughter, Terrilee Quibell, to Dan Wallick at the Presbyterian Church in Fenelon Falls on Saturday, April 27. The wedding reception was held at the Coboconk Legion.

Mrs. Maizie Kelly, who now resides in Lindsay, had a bad fall as she left the Legion hall here last Saturday night. Her friend, Marg Biermaster of Toronto, had brought Maizie to Coby and had spent the evening with friends here. Maizie had one leg amputated a few years ago so naturally, does not get around as easily as you and I do. I'm told she broke a hip, then again, I hear the fall was not quite that serious. In any case, Maizie is resting in Ross Memorial Hospital.

Perhaps you noticed the story about the Anglican minister who was murdered at Maple Ridge, B.C. back on April 23, as he sat at his desk just off from his sanctuary. The people of his parish, St. George's Anglican Church, were shocked and angry that their pastor should be murdered in his church. I found it interesting that Rev. Jack Taylor formerly lived at RR 2 Markham and his first parish was the Haliburton Anglican Church.

With flea markets and garage sales a real "thing" these days, I hope you will remember to visit the old former plywood factory location, now known as the Co-Ro-No Trade Centre, and be part of the grand opening on May 18. So many have laboured long and hard on this project and if enthusiasm means anything, this new business can only go, go, go!

The hard working ladies of St. Luke's ACW are having a smorgasbord supper at the Burnt River Somerville Centre at Burnt River from 4:30-7:30 p.m. That's this Saturday, May 18. Adults are $6 and children $3 with preschoolers free.

The Jack Peel house on Albert St. has been sold to the West's who have a home across the water on Grandy

Rd. behind Mrs. Fralick's. The Campbell's who have a home across from the school on Albert St. have bought the Wm. Hargrave house on Water Street.

Mrs. Shirley Fountain has moved into the house formerly owned by Doug Handley and Doug has moved over to his 'Ponderosa' bush - ranch land just west of Kilmount on Highway 503.

Mrs. Elsie Hargrave, who is recovering from a broken hip in Ross Memorial Hospital is coming along well. Also, I'm glad to hear Millie Routley is making good progress. Keep up the good work ladies, and you'll be soon be home.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Alton have moved to Victoria Road and Mrs. Leslie Francis has moved from the Demoe house on Grandy Rd. to the apartment vacated by the Alton's on Water Street.

It's a great to see the bake shop open again and also, the Balsam Arms Restaurant just west of town. There were lots of fishermen around on Friday so we're back into the swing of summer.

Yours truly and mom, Mrs. Marles, visited Claire Brooks at Lutterworth Pines, Minden, on Wednesday night.

Mrs. Lois McCuaig of Cambray visited her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Greer and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Farrow on Thursday.

Mrs. Gwen Rutter and Mrs. Betty Smales spent a couple of days with Dr. and Mrs. Trant at Georgetown last week. Dr. Trant practised medicine here a few years ago. Betty Smales went to Montreal on Thursday and will enjoy this week with her husband, Joe, who works there all week. The Smales will be back on Friday and Betty will be back to her nursing duties at the Medical Centre next week.

Adam Ledig has bought the old Watson farm, beside the Stone Fountain Motel, at Rosedale, from the last owner, Don Mashinter.

Horse lovers from near and far are in Lindsay for a big horse sale today. My husband, accompanied by Hartley Newell of Gelert and Ted Garells from Coby, is there for sure. I know, as I had to have breakfast early - at 5:30 a.m. so hubby could get away early.

To celebrate the third annual opening of the Burnt River Somerville Centre, there will be a Homecoming weekend which will be May 17, 18, 19 and 20. All sorts of activities are planned. Following the smorgasbord supper there will be a dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. with live music by 'Moonshine'.

Sunday, the 19th, there is a horseshoe tournament that begins at 11 a.m. Also, the Balloon-a-thon begins at 11 a.m. There will be an interdenominational church service at 7:30 p.m. and fireworks display later. Brunch will be served on Monday, May 20 at 10 a.m. until all are served. It sounds like those Burnt River ladies are working all weekend.

Mrs. Frances Nesbitt is doing quite well at home following surgery in Ross Memorial Hospital. Daughter-in-law, Linda Nesbitt of St. Thomas, stayed with her for a while, then daughter-in-law, Carrie Nesbitt of St. Thomas came and stayed. She visited son Norman in Lindsay on Mother's Day weekend then came home again. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Iver Robinson of Cardiff called to visit Mrs. Nesbitt last week.

Ruby Greer is doing well following surgery and is able to be out of doors.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kay and Sam Routley visited Millie Routley in Lindsay hospital on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Goode, Roger and Derek of Queensville were visitors of Mrs. Annie Marles last weekend, and also visited Mr. and Mrs. Rod Harrison and family at Norland.

Saturday is 'Kintoria Day'

Gooderham News

by Mary Hadley

The Glamorgan Community Centre was the setting for a happy event last Saturday afternoon. Maurine Billings, daughter of Vincent and Marilyn Billings, was guest of honour at a wedding shower given by her bridal party. Assisting her were Lisa Bird and Cindy Reil.

Maurine showed her appreciation of the many attractive and useful gifts. She and Rob White, son of Fred and Marilyn White, will exchange vows in the Gooderham United Church on Saturday, May 25. A delightful lunch was served.

Out-of-town guest attending the shower were Beatrice Wilson (nee White) of St. Catharines, Ona White of Oshawa, Cathy Merrill of Sutton and Ruth Madill of Clinton.

Myrtle Alsop of Prince Albert, accompanied by her daughter, Valerie, visited her aunt and uncle, Tommy and Vivian Dovell, recently.

A bridal shower, honoring Judy Garrick, was held in the community centre last Saturday afternoon. Judy and Steve Parnell will be married in the Gooderham United Church on May 18.

May 18 is known as Kintoria Day. Starting at 2 p.m. on that day the South Algonquin Kinsmen will hold an auction sale in front of the Wilberforce arena. This group has initiated several worthwhile projects in our area - one of which if our Participark. They deserve your support. If you have any article which you care to donate, call Ron Barr, 447-2039 before May 18, who will arrange for a pick-up. In the evening, the Kinsmen will be sponsors of a dance in the Wilberforce arena. Music will be supplied by the popular group - "Little Caesar and the Consuls".

Elizabeth Barr was one of a group from the Grade 8 class in the Douglas Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton who enjoyed a thrilling and educational four-day bus trip to Quebec City. They stayed at the Chateau Frontenac from which place they toured the historic old city. Each one was twinned with a French student so their conversation became a bilingual learning experience, not without its humour. Elizabeth feels that this trip was one of the highlights of her 13 years.

Gwen Taylor, Pat Baron and Pat Patton were the three prize winners at bridge last Tuesday night in the Gooderham School.

Clinton Switzer of Bobcaygeon visited his cousin, Grace Billings, last Sunday.

Some 32 members and visitors of the Glamorgan Senior Citizens' Club gathered at the Community Centre last Wednesday evening. In the absence of Ivan Hunter, Fred Vanderland took charge. Lunch, connoisseur, Pat Baron, served pizzas, jello desserts, cake and cookies. This varied from the usual fare and drew many favourable comments.

Fred welcomed all but, in particular, Pat and Harry Woolley, who had been away for the winter; snow-birds Phebe and Norm Shivas; Neila Lem and Margaret and Murray Tabb from Salmon Lake, as well as little Robert Vanderland from Orangeville.

Dorothy Robertson reported on our "Walk to the Moon". Our pedestrian mileage will be recorded for only one week - May 22 to June 4.

Violet Billings, secretary, read the minutes.

The evening was spent on the shuffleboard court, with games of euchre or chattering.

The Gooderham Gun Club congratulated Dan Dewey for his excellent marksmanship on his achievement of running a 25 straight at the trap range on Sunday, May 12.

Last Saturday was "pitch-in" day for the younger citizens of Glamorgan. Led by deputy-reeve Jane Franklin, 15 children congregated at the community centre, there to disperse around the park area and collect trash carelessly thrown around. In their exuberance they collected almost 30 bags. A contest for the best-decorated garbage bag worn by the contestant ended in a tie between Erin Pettit and Jason Donaldson.

By this time the children were ready for lunch of hot dogs, doughnuts and pop, prepared under the capable hands of Beatrice Hillis. It was a successful venture.

Janice Nuttal of Nipigon and her sister Joanne Field of Grand Bend with her little daughter, Leslie Ann, visited their grandparents, Priscilla and Clifford Mintz this last weekend. As part of her university course, Janice is busy on a working assignment at Community Cable TV Channel 10, Toronto.

Visiting their parents, Pat and Walter Baron, for Mother's Day weekend were their son, Paul, daughter, Kathy and her husband, Mark, of Fergus.

Education Week was an enriching experience, prosperous for CAT Scan

By SHERI MAGEE

This spring weather is being enjoyed by all of the staff and students here at Kinnount Public School. And everyone is using any spare time to practise for track and field. The north end track and field meet is being held on May 17 this year. Teams will come from Norland, Cobocok, Kirkfield, Burnt River and Kinnount to participate. Those who place first and second in Kinnount will go on to Lindsay for the Victoria County track meet. I'd just like to take this time to wish everyone the best of luck.

The month of April was filled with preparation for Education Week and our annual open house. Education Week began April 19 and ended on April 26 this year. For open house, each student told of one activity he or she participated in this year at school. Parents and friends of the students attended our Education Week celebrations.

Many of the students have been eligible to attend enrichment sessions held in various schools for those students with exceptional talents. These courses provide extra-curriculum work and a chance to meet new friends and get away from the monotony of everyday school life. Some of the topics have included dance, bookmaking, music, map-drawing, art and weaving, computers and French.

The Students' Council organized a bake sale and white elephant table on April 16. Sixty dollars of the profit was donated to the CAT Scan fund. Miss Doris Winchester came to the school, showed slides and discussed all aspects of the CAT Scan. And later on the Students' Council presented her with the cheque.

The school has been trying to raise money for our trip to Canada's Wonderland at the end of the year. The money has been raised through sales of hot dogs, fruit juice and bake sales and white elephant tables.

Situated in our schoolyard is the Ministry of Health dental coach. They will provide checkups for those students who do not see a dentist on a regular basis. Students from all five of the northern schools will be making full use of this facility.

ALTON - In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Hubert Frances, who passed away May 16, 1983.

Two years have past. Our hearts still ache. And silent tears still flow. What it meant to lose you Dad, No one will ever know. When a day is sad and lonely And everything goes wrong, We seem to hear you whisper, Cheer up and carry on. When we see your picture, You seem to smile and say Don't cry I'm only sleeping We'll meet again some day. Sadly missed by daughter Laurie, son-in-law Bob, grandchildren Shane, Tanya, Tara and Shauna. 32-P-15

IN MEMORIAM

ALTON, Hubert F., Sr. - In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away two years ago, May 16, 1983 in his 69th year. We watched him suffer day by day.

It caused us bitter grief, To see him slowly pine away And could not give relief. His weary hours and days of pain His troubled nights are past, And in our aching hearts we know He has found sweet rest at last. 'Tis sweet to know we will meet again Where parting is no more And my dear husband I loved so well Has only gone before. God knows how much I miss him He counts the tears I shed And whispers "Hush he only sleeps Your husband is not dead."

Some day, some time My eyes shall see The face I loved so well Some day, some time His hands I'll clasp And never say farewell. Sadly missed by his wife Ruth. 32-B-15

SCHEFFEE - In loving memory of my dear husband Bill who passed away May 12, 1982.

A sadness still comes over us, Tears in silence often flow. Memory keeps him ever near us. Tho he died three years ago. Sadly missed by his wife Laura. 32-P-15

In loving memory of dear ones, a husband and dad, Wesley Crawford who left us May 13, 1983; a brother and uncle, Frank, June 4, 1984; a mother and grandmother, Sarah Paige, April 22, 1985.

Some day we hope to meet again. Some day we know not when. To clasp their hand and see their smile In a better land. Never to part again. So sadly missed and always remembered with love, Alice Crawford and family. 32-P-15

In memory of RONALD WALKER, our dear son and brother who passed away May 18, 1980.

We often stand and think of him When we are all alone, For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.

Like ivy on the withered oak When all other things decay, Our love for him will still keep green And never fade away. Sadly missed by Robert and Florence Walker and Bazil Walker and family. 32-P-15

In memory of my family, Hugh and Harry MacDonald, Agnes and Walt Rosenberg.

Till memory fades and life departs You'll live forever in my heart. Sister Tressa. 32-P-15
